The Senate's Action on the Taking of the Next Census.

REMARKS OF MR. WRIGHT.

Shall the Census of the Surviving Veterans of the War Be Taken—The Nicaraguan Canal Bill—Land Grant Forfeiture. Other Washington Dispatches.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The senate census committee will resume to-morrow morning the consideration of the census bill. The committee has caused to be published the remarks made by Carroll D. Wright, commissioner of labor; Maj. William Warner, commander-in-chief of the Grand Army of the Republic, and Representative Atkinson, of Pennsylvania; also a letter from Hon. Robert P. Porter, of New York.

Commissioner Wright, in his statement to the committee, called attention to the fact that the act of 1879 provided for the taking of a census in any state, the United States to pay for one-half of the expenses, provided any state should elect so to do. "Several states," said the commissioner, "undertook to compile this census, but so far as accomplishing the object sought by congress, was concerned, the work was a failure. That provision has been stricken out of this bill. States, however, should be induced to take a census, though it cannot be done on the basis adopted in the act of 1879.

"If congress desires the states to assist in taking a census, it should be done by inducing states to take their own census and furnishing a certain class of information to congress, for which congress will remunerate the states. In the last census very few states took interest enough in the matter to carry out instructions properly. Information came in behind hand, and the law was stretched in order to pay the bills accruing for the work."

Maj. Warner spoke in favor of the proposed census, showing the name, command and age of the survivors of the late war. Among other things, he said:

"I apprehend that no man to-day has ever figured out the number of troops who were actually engaged in the Union army. I know that is the impression of Gen. Sherman. I have a letter from him on this subject, but have been unable to find it this morning, showing that the number engaged in the Union army was largely exaggerated by reason of re-enlistments or same men appearing in different organizations. These names have never been separated in such a way as to get the exact numbers. If this census was taken so as to furnish requisitions. If the census was taken so as to furnish the requisite information as to regimental organizations, battery, war ship, etc., a claimant for a pension could turn at once to this record to ascertain the residence of a comrade. I think this information would be incalculable service to those who are entitled to a pension. It would also be valuable data for the commissioner of pensions."

Gen. Porter, in his letter to the committee, after commenting on the senate bill, says: "In the special investigations of 1880, the work which was done without compensation was nothing short of appalling, and it is doubtful if they will stand another such violation of special agents and special investigations unless some adequate compensation is offered them. I am strongly in favor of a statistical census and a skillfully summarized census as against a historical census and a census multitudinous and cumbersome."

Land Grant Forfeiture Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The conferees on the general land grant forfeiture bills have been endeavoring for a week to get together to prepare a report, but they have been unable to obtain the presence of a quorum. When congress adjourned at the end of the first session it seemed altogether unlikely that an agreement on these bills would be reached before the date of final adjournment. The conferees on the part of the house and senate were equally determined to give way in no particular, and as their views were widely divergent, it was thought by Mr. Holman and Senator Plum that no agreement would be reached.

Meantime one of the house conferees, Mr. Stone, of Missouri, went away, and when it was desired to hold another meeting of the conferees, it was found that he was not in the city. Mr. McDonald was therefore asked by Mr. Holman to serve in his place, and he met with the conferees. This morning, to the surprise of the senate conferees, the house conferees seemed inclined to come to terms, and those terms were the terms offered by the senate. Another meeting was to have been held on the day following. In the meantime Mr. Stone arrived in the city. The appointment of Mr. McDonald as a member of the conference had not been made by the speaker, and so Mr. Stone returned to the ranks of the conferees, and he is now credited with the opposition which is defeating the agreement of the conference by preventing a meeting of the conferees. There have been five attempts to bring the conferees together, but the house conferees have been absent at the appointed time. These efforts will be renewed to-day.

Nicaraguan Canal Bill.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The conferees on the Nicaragua canal bill held a meeting yesterday, and arrived at a provisional agreement. They will hold another meeting to-morrow when the agreement will be finally ratified and made public. The conferees refused to make public any of the provisions of the agreement, claiming that it had not been settled and that to-morrow's meeting might reopen the question. Senator Morgan said that the agreement, as far as it could be foreseen, was of such character that he thought it would be agreed to in both houses, without much difficulty. It is said that one of the terms of the agreement provides for the withdrawal of the house from the amendment, providing that the United States shall have the right to fix the tolls to be charged. The clause providing that 10 per cent. of the capital stock shall be paid up will be modified in some respects.

Senate Proceedings.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—In the senate Mr. Voorhees reported a joint resolution accepting the donation of a battle sword of Capt. Samuel Reed and providing for the presentation to his son of a gold medal.

Bill referring to the court of claims the claim of the state National bank of Louisiana for cotton taken by agents of the treasury department after June 30, 1865, was passed.

The senate then resumed consideration on the tariff bill. The question of admitting salt free of duty was debated at length.

One Way of Crossing the River.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The secretary of war has transmitted to the house a letter from the chief of engineers, together with a copy of the second preliminary report of the board of engineers, constituted in accordance with the requirements of the river and harbor act of August 16, 1888, to examine the obstruction to navigation in the Columbia river at The Dalles and Celelo Falls and at Three and Ten Miles Rapids, and to report as to the feasibility and advisability of overcoming such obstructions by means of a boat railway at the Dalles and Celelo Falls.

The board, after discussing the various projects concluded that a single track portage railway, which is estimated to cost $431,500 and could be constructed in one year, would undoubtedly be the cheapest and quickest solution of existing difficulties. The chief engineer agrees with the board in these views, and says that such a road would afford temporary relief and be a valuable aid in the construction of another and more satisfactory solution of the problem which the growth of commerce demands. The board is now discussing hydraulic and the adaptibility to the locality, with a view of dispensing, if possible, with flights of locks in the canal projects and inclines in the boat railway project. The possibility of connecting the two proposed boat railways by a suitable track, will also be ascertained, in order to reduce the number of inclines or lifts, and avoid improving the river at Ten Mile Rapids, which the board believes necessary at large cost before this portion will be navigable, at all desirable stages.

Taxing Farm Products.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13.—J. Eugene Parker, of Shelter Island, Suffolk county, New York, appeared before the senate committee on finance yesterday and made an argument in favor of taxing various farm products imported into this country. He asked that potatoes be taxed twenty-five cents a bushel; turnips, fifteen cents; cabbage, two cents per head or half a cent per pound; cauliflower in salt or brine, four cents per barrel or one cent a pound; eggs, five cents per dozen, and egg yolks or eggs preserved, three cents per pound.

Pension Agents' Fees.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The senate committe on pensions gave a hearing yesterday to Representatives Dockery, Peters and Gallinger, who spoke in favor of the bill prohibiting the payment of fees to pension agents in certain cases which recently passed the house. Gen. Dudley and several other pension attorneys made arguments against the bill. Assistant Commissioner of Pensions McLean appeared before the committee by request and gave an explanation of the evils under the existing law.

A Vessel Sails for Samoa.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—A dispatch was received at the navy department this morning from Admiral Kimberly at Panama, commanding the Trenton, announcing his departure yesterday with that vessel for Apia, Samoa, to look after American interests there. The Vandalia, now undergoing repairs at San Francisco, is about ready for sea, and will probably sail for Panama on Thursday to take the place of the Trenton on the Pacific side of the isthmus.

Among the bills introduced in the senate was one by Senator Byrd against combines and trusts, making it unlawful for trusts to exist and another giving a man who is injured while in the employ of a corporation a fixed compensation. Senators Cox and Parrett, each introduced bills revising and amending the present election law. No bill providing for the registration of voters as recommended by Governor Hovey has yet been introduced.

The Affairs in Samoa.

A Presidential Message on This Important Subject

IS LAID BEFORE CONGRESS.

The Power of the German Government Existing There at the Present Time. She is Not Antagonistic to the United States—Our Present War Footing There.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 16.—The president sent to congress a message accompanied with a mass of documents giving the status of affairs now in Samoa and the progress of affairs there. The correspondence enclosed is that since December 21, 1888. The president says: "The information thus laid before congress is of much importance, since it has relation to the preservation of American interests and the protection of American citizens and their property in a distant locality and under unsuitable and unsatisfactory government.

"In the most of the disturbances which have arisen at Samoa, such powers have been exercised as seem to be within executive control under the constitution and laws which appease to accord with our National policy and condition to restore tranquility and secure the safety of our citizens through negotiation and agreement with Great Britain and Germany, which with our own government constitute the treaty powers interested in Samoan peace and quiet. The attempt has been made to define more clearly the part which those powers shall assume in the government of that country, while at the same time its authority has been insisted upon those negotiations were at one time interrupted by such action on the part of the German government as appeared to be inconsistent with their further continuance.

"Germany, however, still insists as from the first that she has no desire or intention to overturn the native Samoan government or to ignore our treaty rights, and she still invites our government to join her proposition on this subject, and seems to lead to such a preponderance of German power in Samoa as was never contemplated by us, and is inconsistent with every prior agreement or every understanding, while her recent conduct as between native warring factories gives rise to the suspicion that she is not content with a neutral position. Acting under the restraints which our constitution and laws have placed upon the executive power, I have insisted that the autonomy and independence of Samoa should be scrupulously preserved according to the treaty made with Samoa by the powers named, and the other agreements and understanding with each other.

"I have protested against every act apparently tending in the opposite direction, showing the existence of internal disturbances. One or more vessels of war have been kept in Samoa waters to protect American citizens and property. These things will abundantly appear from the correspondence and papers which have been submitted to the congress. A recent collision between the forces from a German man-of-war stationed in Samoan waters and a body of natives, rendered the situation so delicate and critical that the war ship Trenton, under the immediate command of Admiral Kimberly, was ordered to join the Nipsic already at Samoa for the better protection of person and property of our citizens and in furtherance of efforts to restore order and safety.

"The attention of congress is especially called to the instructions given to Admiral Kimberly, dated on the 11th inst., and the letter of the secretary of state to the German minister, dated the 12th inst., which will be found among the papers herewith submitted. By means of the papers and documents heretofore submitted, and those accompanying this communication, the precise situation of affairs in Samoa is laid before congress, and such executive action as has been taken is fully exhibited."

The view of the executive in respect to the just policy to be pursued with regard to this group of islands which lie in the direct highway of the growing and important commerce between Australia and the United States have found expression in the correspondence and documents which have thus been carefully communicated to congress, and the subject in its present stage is submitted to the wiser discussion conferrd by the constitution upon the legislative branch of the government. The correspondence alluded to by the president was not laid before the house or senate.

Troops Ready to Quell a Riot.

RICHMOND, Va., Jan. 16.—The telegram received here last night from Brig. Gen Anderson, of Richmond, to Capt. Kirk Otey, of the Lynchburg Home guard, instructing him to hold his command in readiness to proceed to Pocahontas, Va., at a moment's notice, is explained by the following dispatch, dated Pocahontas: "A strike is threatened among the miners on the Elkhorn, on account of oversized cars. The men here are in sympathy with them, and have promised them assistance." Capt. Otey will hold his command in readiness to move promptly in the event of instructions to that effect. There was a riot at Pocahontas in the early spring of last year, on which occasion the Lynchburg military were despatched to the scene of trouble.

SCRANTON, Pa., Jan. 16.—Congressman Frank C. Bunnell's bank at Tankhannock has suspended owing to a run and the withdrawal of $30,000 deposits in a single day by farmers on account of a rumor that an execution of $40,000 had been issued against the bank and remained unsatisfied. The total deposits are about $100,000. Mr. Bunnell says nobody will lose a cent, and that the bank will reopen as soon as it manages this temporary difficulty. He is loyally supported by the business men of this place.

Anarchists Win Again

They Can Make as Many Speeches as They Like.

SO DECIDED BY THE COURT.

Their Assembling Must Be Peaceful, and If So, No Police Can Prohibit the Meetings on the Mere Plea of "Preventing Crime"—Substance of the Judge's Decision.

CHICAGO, Jan. 16.—Judge Tuley, in the Arbeiter Bund injunction case, has declined to grant the injunction, because, he said, he had the assurance of the city officials that his decision as to the right of the complainants to assemble would be respected. His decision is that they have the right to peaceably assemble and that the police cannot in advance of a contemplated meeting assume that is is going to be illegal, and make that assumption a pretext for its prohibition. Therefore he considers the formal issuance of an injunction at this time unnecessary.

The substance of Judge Tuley's decision is as follows:

"I find no reason to differ with the master," said the court, "in his finding that there was no right to assume that the members of this society were about to meet for an unlawful act. Assemblies, for the purpose of establishing a co-operative or profit-sharing system instead of the wage system have been held in many countries and under a free government there exists no law which prohibits the assembling of people for the establishment of such a system. Their object may be the overturning of existing institutions, but they have a right to publicly meet and peacefully discuss projects.

"The right of free speech is a natural one and can never be overturned under a republican form of government. The objects of the association to which Spies et al. belonged were vitally different from those of this particular society. The counsel for the city had argued that the supreme court had pronounced Anarchy as an evil and as criminal. That was not so; the supreme court denounced some of the principles of Anarchy, but it had pronounced no edict of outlawry against Anarchy as a body."

The court addressed himself to a disquisition of the law relating to the question whether the police had authority, under the law, to prohibit meetings on the plea of "preventing crime." The court at much length went on to show that the police had no such general power under the law. "I am astounded to find," said the court, "in this age and in a free country that it should be sought to be held by argument, that, upon an affidavit setting forth the mere belief that the members of a society hold treasonable principles, it should not be allowed to hold a meeting."

WHITE CAP DEPREDATIONS.

Two Men Beaten Into Insensibility By Fifteen Masked Men.

WORCESTER, Mass., Jan. 16.—Recently a number of weavers at the Housatonic mills left work because of trouble with the overseer, and new hands from abroad were put to work in their places. This caused much annoyance to the strikers, but the new hands were not molested till last night, when two of them, Paul Purdy and Joseph Lesher, on their way home from the mill, were met in a lonely spot by fifteen masked men, who announced themselves as White Caps, and who proceeded to beat and kick Purdy and Lesher into insensibility, leaving them in the roadway. Purdy was the worst sufferer, being bruised from head to foot.

The pair reached their house at a late hour at night, utterly exhausted from loss of blood.

Purdy was unconscious all night, and the doctors feared he would die, but he is improved to-day. The affair causes much excitement, and further trouble is feared. The mill owners are prepared to punish the offenders if found.

No effort was made to appoint a referee or to deposit the final $5,000 in his match with John L. Sullivan. Mitchell is loud in his denunciation of his treatment by the press. He absolutely refuses to meet Dempsey in the ring with the most contemplauous terms. Mitchell will sail for England on the Britannic on Wednesday next. The two victims finally reached home, and though seriously injured, will recover. The affair causes much excitement and more trouble is feared.

The Print Cloth Market Firm.

FALL RIVER, Mass., Jan. 16.—The print cloth market was firm and active at four cents for near deliveries. All mills are well sold head for January, February and March. Higher prices are behind in. Print works are running fuller time than usual, and with few exceptions are not heavily stocked. Yesterday contracts are made at four cents up to April, and offers of three and seven-eighths cents for July contracts are freely made.

What She Paid Him For.

ANN ARBOR, Mich., Jan. 16.—President Cotterill and Mrs. Freund met here yesterday to discuss electric sugar affairs. What was decided on, if anything, is not known. Mrs. Freund's attorney advised her to take the $6,000 offered and give up her secret. The two hundred and fifty pound widow replied: "Sir, I pay you to inform me as to my legal rights, not to conduct my business."

The rich and celebrated Hebrew Baron Hirsch, who has given $[illegible] altogether for educational purposes in Russia and Austria, has produced a sensation in Paris by asserting in an interview that his purpose is to help settle the Jewish question, which he believes can only be done by the amalgamation of Jews and Christians and the subversion of exclusive theology. He declares himself the enemy of fanaticism and bigotry, and the funds he has donated are for the purpose of educating Jewish and Christian children together in the same schools. He says: "I feel convinced that the doctrine of assimilation is the solution of the Semitic question."

[illegible] Democrats, like the late Gen. Hancock, are evidently of the opinion that "the tariff is a local issue." Senator Voorhees, the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash, has been explaining whose tariff he wants reformed. It isn't the tariff around Terre Haute, New Albany and other Indiana manufacturing cities, but the one over in the other States. And, sad to narrate, Voorhees is not the only Democrat who wants the other fellow's tariff reformed. This is rather a selfish world.

Mr. Cleveland lost much of his famous "back bone" when he withdrew his nomination of Leon Bailey for United States Attorney at Indianapolis. If Mr. Bailey was worthy of the appointment, of which we presume Mr. Cleveland assured himself before appointing him, nothing but the refusal of the Senate to confirm him should have led him to withdraw the nomination.

It is reported that a Frenchman has invented a shell in which is inclosed a powerful anesthetic. It is intended to explode in the enemy's breastworks and put them all to sleep, when the wide awake host will march in and arrange things before waking up time. It is a great improvement over the old method.

The subject of taxation and the revision of tax laws is receiving attention in many other States as well as in Ohio. Illinois is moving for a law exempting personal property from taxation and Minnesota is debating the repeal of all taxes on the products of labor.

It is amusing to read the free trade press [illegible] from such States as Pennsylvania saying that the thirty votes of that State have been cast for Harrison, [illegible] Texas saying that the total electoral vote of that State has been given to Cleveland and Thurman. It does not make very sensational reading.

An American Newspaper.

The New York Mail and Express, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence. It is one of the cleanest, fair, tolerant and yet strong journals of this country, which has won a [illegible] made up of the best people. It has high ideals in journalism and lives up to them. In [illegible] its sentiment is always with the moral and progressive elements. In editorial and literary matters it is an American authority. It has a place of its own among American papers for felicitous sketches of everyday life and matters of current interest. Its writers excel in descriptive writing and in true and graceful portraiture [illegible]. A reader can hardly pick up a paper of the better class in the United States without finding an article quoted from the Mail and Express. In its editorial [illegible] it is pure and always of high tone. It is strictly Republican and a strong friend of American labor. Its influence is always for the better side, and temperance people know it as one of the strongest, most influential newspapers on the side of practical temperance reform. It is one of the very best news and home papers.

Sample copies are sent free, and we advise every one of our readers to send for one.

St. Kilda is one of the most fashionable places of residence, and it is here that part of the play "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab" was based. It is only three miles from Melbourne and on the shores of Hobson's bay. Numerous bathing establishments and hotels cater to the visitor's comfort.—[illegible] Commercial Advertiser.

Suggestions for Pleasing Costumes to Be Worn at Fancy Dress Balls — Correct Copies of Dresses Worn in the Times of Louis XV and Louis XVI.

Fancy dress balls are all the rage just now, and a few suggestions concerning costumes will therefore be opportune. At the fancy balls in France and England costumes are to be seen representing all times and ages, richly and faithfully copied, especially those of the last century—Louis XV and Louis XVI.

[illegible] OF LOUIS XV—ARABIAN LADY.

In the first cut is represented a vivandiere of Louis XV's time. The jacket bodice and skirt in blue ladies' cloth is trimmed with gold braid and buttons. The waistcoat is of red satin. The hair is powdered and dressed with a knot of ribbon loops and ends fringed with gold. The [illegible] barrel opens at the side. The felt hat is trimmed with ostrich feathers.

The remaining figure in the same cut suggests a more novel dress, that of an Arabian lady. Following is a brief description: Skirt in Arabian gauze, striped with green, red and yellow. Tunic also in striped silk, broidered with gold. Scarf and bow. Figaro vest in gold satin. Bodice and sugar loaf cap in dark blue velvet. Spangled lace veil; jeweled band round the cap. Necklet of gold and silver coins.

[illegible]

In the second cut is represented a costume for a favorite character at fancy dress balls—namely Grace Darling. [illegible] jacket and skirt in white and red [illegible] front and turned up [illegible]

The other figure in cut No. 2 [illegible] fancy dress of a Druidess. The [illegible] white dress may be of white [illegible] at the waist with a [illegible]. This white dress is draped [illegible] wreath [illegible] the head.

A [illegible] costume is known as [illegible] Night [illegible] made of [illegible] of black tulle studded with gold stars. [illegible] Another [illegible] gypsies are [illegible] characters. The costume includes a short skirt in red satin [illegible] with a broad band of silk printed with [illegible] cabalistic signs. [illegible] striped [illegible] satin and gold [illegible] velvet bodice [illegible] a fringe of [illegible] sequins [illegible] round the [illegible] head and on the arms. In the hair [illegible] of gold and [illegible]

For Lined Garments.

Fur linings are now limited almost entirely to the useful [illegible] with squirrel [illegible] linings and to the gay opera cloaks that are lined with the white crinkled fleece of the Chinese mandarin lamb. The circulars, says Harper's Bazar, are of Ottoman silk or of black camel's hair, and are improved by having an inner front fastened from top to bottom, with armholes in the outer cloak; they are trimmed down the fronts, over the armholes, and have a collar of fur, but are not trimmed at the foot, as that would add to their weight. Opera cloaks are long Russian [illegible] made of fine twilled wool in the new [illegible] shades, with white lamb skin lining and collar. [illegible] they are more loosely shaped, with square or flowing sleeves, and are made of pale gray velvet, with white mandarin collar and lining, or of plush lined and trimmed with chinchilla, or the cloak may be merely warmly wadded, and its only fur be the rich sable used for its shawl collar and border. Short opera cloaks in the mantle shapes are made of gay red or blue striped velvets, matelasse, or plush, and trimmed with the long furs, black fox, bear, silver fox, badger, etc. Cloth garments that are trimmed with fur are made up in nearly all the designs used for fur wraps. Newmarket jackets are of blue or black diagonal cloth, fitted by a tailor, and trimmed with collar, cuffs and vest, or with long front rows of plucked beaver fur, or else a black camel's hair cloth jacket has a wide roll or binding of black Persian lamb skin all around it, making it suitable for a mourning wrap, while the long Russian coats are made of the softest diagonal cloths—blue, green or rosewood in color—trimmed with a shawl collar and lengthwise rows of black marten or some other fur with long fleece.

Children's Millinery.

Children's millinery is even more picturesque than that of their elders. The flat empire hat is often supplemented by a ruche of ostrich feathers edging the inside of the brim, and [illegible] with a pointed hood of red [illegible] from the center, though in [illegible] style, are none the less becoming. Little faces always accord well with large hats, and they are often worn by the young folk. Soft felts with fur trimmings are fashionable, and with these furs [illegible] beaver or otter are introduced [illegible] and stand a good deal of [illegible] about. [illegible] are made in [illegible] shape with the brims [illegible]

A SMALL BOY'S REVENGE

He Creates a Family Row Over His Father's Pretty Typewriter.

A good story is told on a certain well known lawyer who now has one of his daughters to manipulate his typewriter instead of the winsome blonde who was formerly a handsome piece of furniture in the office. The change came about in this way.

One day his 10-year-old son wandered into his office just as the legal light was examining a letter written by the hired amanuensis. In order to read the letter it was necessary for the lawyer to bend over the back of the young lady's chair. The youngster looked at his parent, took in the situation, and then said: "Pa, I want a quarter."

"I'm busy now, don't bother me, boy," said the father, and he continued to hang over the shapely shoulder of the fair typewriter and peruse the letter which she held in her hand.

"Pa," said the boy again, "I want a quarter. You'd better give it to me and I'll clear out."

"Don't worry me, I tell you," said the father. "Can't you see that I am busy?"

The youngster didn't say any more, but just hung around the office. He looked out of the window and counted the white horses as they went by, he emptied some sand into the inkstand, and then [illegible] pointed with mucilage, and did a lot of other mischievous things such as will only suggest themselves to a 10-year-old boy. But he kept a close watch on the governor and typewriter, and every now and then would shrug his shoulders as much as to say: "I'll get even with you."

Finally the lawyer was ready to go home, and taking the little boy by the hand they walked to their modest appearing but handsomely furnished residence. Very little was said on the way, and the father was evidently vexed at what he considered the misbehavior of his son. When the family sat down to dinner he narrated the circumstances to his wife, and she sternly told the young man that if he could not behave himself she would not let him go down to his father's office again.

The boy didn't seem to mind that much, and finally said, as he balanced his fork on his forefinger: "Perhaps I was somewhat rude and impatient, but mamma, if you'd seen pa lean over that pretty typewriter and play with her bangs, and whisper in her ear, you'd have thought he'd been glad to give me a quarter to get me out of the way. I never knew how much pa was stuck on her before."

The youngster was sent away from the table in disgrace, and he subsequently received striking evidence of a parent's wrath, but there was also an agreement between the parents that resulted in the dismissal of the fair typewriter the following day.—Washington Star.

TESTIMONIALS WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE.

My daughter Maud has used Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters, which you so strongly recommended her to try for inflammatory rheumatism. Her limbs were badly swollen, and the poor girl was in terrible agony. In the midst of the pain we wound the Plasters about her limbs, and, as a result the swelling was reduced and she became quiet and rested. The syrup corrected her indigestion, cleansed the rheumatic poison from her blood, and she is now able to be around the house. Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters are remedies of great merit.

Pastor First M. E. Church, Fremont, Mich.

ALBION, Mich., Dec. 20, 1887.—While employed as agent of the Michigan Central Railroad Company at Augusta, Mich., about seven years ago, my kidneys became diseased, and I have been a great sufferer ever since. Have consulted the leading physicians of this city and Ann Arbor, and all pronounced my case Bright's disease. Suffering under a very severe attack in October last, began taking Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup, and am today a well man. It affords me pleasure to render suffering humanity any good that I can, and in speaking of the remedy, allow me to say that I think it the greatest medicine in the world.

A SURE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

My Poor Back!

That "poor back" is not responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog bites a man who kicks it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys attack [illegible] against nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. [illegible] to do extraordinary work in ridding the system of the poisons which is the result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer [illegible] back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet!" But they will be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's Celery Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying, and laxative effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it [illegible] curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. If your hopes of cure have not been realized, try Paine's Celery Compound; it gives perfect satisfaction to all who complain of "their poor backs." Price $1.00.

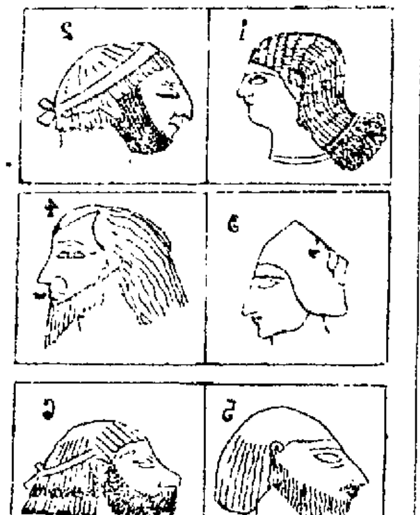
SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

VARIOUS TOPICS THAT ARE BEING TALKED ABOUT.

Results from the Study of Babylonian Monuments Which Open Entirely New Ideas of the Early History of the Ancient World.

In a recent number of The Journal of the Anthropological institute, Mr G. Bertin publishes an interesting study of the types of man found on Babylonian monuments. One of the most remarkable results of his researches is the proof that the Armenian race of these early times exhibits the same characteristics to be noticed in the modern Armenians (Fig. 3). This is the more remarkable from the fact that at this period the language spoken in Armenia, and illustrated by the inscriptions of Van, is totally different from Armenian, and linguistically connected with Akkadian and Medic. Evidently the Armenian population has, in course of time, acquired a new language, while its physical characteristics survive. Dr von Luschan has shown that the Turks and Greeks of Asia Minor are of the same Armenian type, and thus the great antiquity of the native population of this region is proved.

A few figures from the plate accompanying Mr. Bertin's paper, and recently reproduced in Science, are shown in the annexed cut. It will be noted that the faces are represented in profile, with eyes in full face. Figs. 2, 4, 5 and 6 are of peculiar interest. The persons represented resemble the types of figures on Assyrian monuments, showing people of inferior condition. Fig. 2 is taken from an Assyrian monument. The head is small and round, the forehead low and slanting, the cheek bones high, the lips thin and the chin retreating. In many of these figures a marked prognathism may be observed. The nose is often large, and does not appear to have ever been flat and wide, as among the Tartars; hair and beard are frizzy; the stature short. In some parts of Babylonia this type seems to have formed the great mass of the population. According to Mr Bertin's theory, this people was the original race of western Asia, and he goes so far as to identify it with the European prehistoric races, which are by many authors believed to be of Iberian origin. He adds: "An important point to notice is that this race is everywhere found in an inferior social position, and it was equally so in the remotest ages. Nowhere did it rise to the rank of a dominant or ruling race, but everywhere it accepted the yoke of the conquering tribe invading its land. It is the race of the land, and recognizes any new master with a passive obedience. This explains why this race has no language of its own, for it accepts willingly that of its masters." The author believes that this people was conquered by Akkadians and by Semites, and that the mixture of these races, with the addition of some Aryan blood, resulted in a population showing the various types found on the monuments.



TYPES ON BABYLONIAN MONUMENTS.

The study of the west Asiatic and Egyptian monuments from an anthropological and philological point of view has recently yielded most interesting results, and opened entirely new views of the early history of the ancient world. The intercourse between the various peoples, and their mutual influence upon each other, were so important that a comprehensive and comparative study of all these numerous peoples is necessary to reach satisfactory results. The theories of Mr Bertin are suggestive, and well worth a careful consideration.

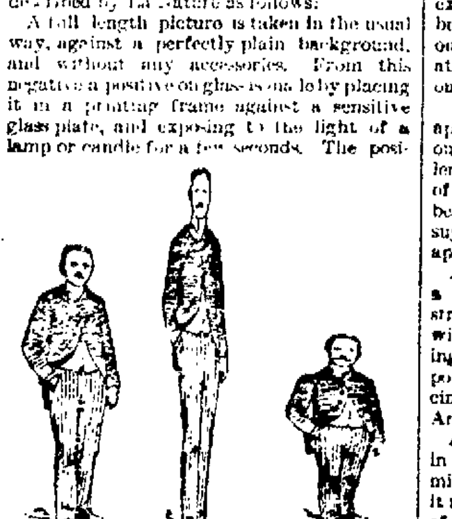
A New Submarine Boat.

Recent experiments with a submarine boat, La Gymnote, made at Toulon, have been very successful. The boat moves horizontally as well as vertically, and is easily kept at any depth that is desired. It can be run at a speed of from nine to ten knots. The light is good and its operation easy. Its crew is ordinarily three, but during the experiments five persons were on board. The Revue Scientifique says that the new boat, an invention of Mr. Krebs, is a complete success, and will become of the greatest importance in marine warfare.

Caricature Photographs.

It is an easy matter for the photographic amateur to produce distorted portraits, similar to those represented in the engraving, with an ordinary camera. The method is described by La Nature as follows:

A full length picture is taken in the usual way, against a perfectly plain background, and without any accessories. From this negative a positive on glass is made by placing it in a printing frame against a sensitive glass plate, and exposing to the light of a lamp or candle for a few seconds. The positive transparency is developed and finished, and placed before the camera so that the light passes through it, but inclined at an angle to the camera, either lengthwise or sideways, according as the image is to be shortened or lengthened, and a second negative taken, which will give the distorted figures shown in the engraving. To obtain the best results, it is best, in taking the distorted pictures, to use a lens of very short focus and as small a diaphragm used as is possible. From the second negative thus produced any number of positives can be printed.



AMUSING RESULTS OF PHOTOGRAPHY.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE

The Home Spun Linen Sheets of Our Grandmothers.

Fancy workers who happen to own old linen home spun sheets, such as are put away in forgotten trunks in many an old garret, may think themselves fortunate, says The Home Maker, for few modern materials are better subjects for needle work. If a sheet of this kind is in good order, it can be made into a beautiful quilt by making it very much smaller, as an ornamental bed cover is not designed to tuck in or hang very far over. The edge on each side may be fringed out and tied, or the edges may be hemmed and a slightly gathered frill of torchon lace added. Far enough from the edge to come within the square defined by the mattress a broad pattern in large design is drawn and worked in outline stitch with heavy rope silk in one or at most two shades. In the middle of the quilt, outline with the same color a large shield. Within this shield work a name or initials and darn all the plain part of the shield with a contrasting shade of silk.

If a sheet is too far demoralized to use in this way, it may be torn into strips and each strip decorated with a running pattern in outline stitch. These strips are hemmed and joined to alternate stripes of antique or torchon lace inserting, or the inserting may be knitted or crochetted, if time is not a paramount object.

For bureau covers, toilet mats, chair scarfs and cushions, this old linen is admirable. At some of the exchanges for woman's work, highly decorated curtains are shown of the same material, which hangs in beautiful folds.

Softening Water for the Laundry.

An authority on softening water, making soap and kindred matters says: For all washing and cleansing operations it is indispensable, if good and economical results are to be obtained, first to soften the water before using soap of any kind. Softening water simply consists in removing the soluble lime salts with which all water (except pure rainwater) is more or less impregnated. If this is not done the soluble lime forms an insoluble lime soap from the decomposition of the soap used for washing. This substance is a greasy, sticky, oily compound, perfectly insoluble and more difficult to wash away afterwards by any treatment. It is this that causes the yellow grayish deposit on the edges of collars and cuffs washed simply with hard water and soap, and the sticky, greasy deposit on wool when treated in a similar manner and also on the sides and edges of all washing machines.

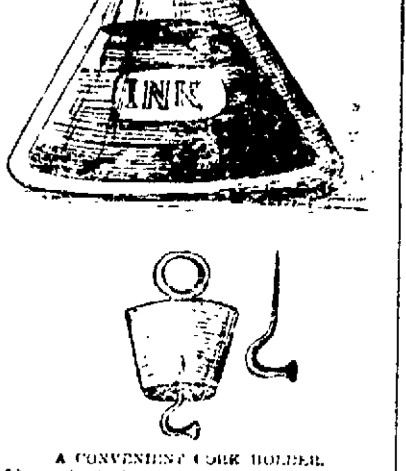
It is a most uneconomical proceeding to wash anything in water and soap alone without previously softening the water. Not a particle of soap can become available for washing purposes until all the added lime in the water has combined with the amount of soap it requires to form the insoluble lime soap. As compared with the pure 98 per cent. powdered caustic soda, such as the "Greenbank" brand, it requires twelve pounds of the very finest pure soap, or twenty to thirty pounds of ordinary soap, such as is usually sold to manufacturers, to do the same work that can be done with one pound of this soda.

Beef Drippings for Cooking Purposes.

Good beef dripping is better than lard for some kinds of pastry and for frying purposes, though for the latter use it burns sooner than lard. Clarify it by pouring boiling water on it as it is taken from the dripping pan, letting it stand till cold and firm, then taking out the cake of fat and scraping off the impurities from the bottom, the rest will be clean and sweet. Bacon fat can also be used in the place of lard, but mutton drippings will only answer for frying purposes, and many cooks will not use them even for that on account of the flavor they impart.

An Ingenious Device.

"What do you do with the cork when you take it out of a full bottle of ink?" asks a correspondent of Rural New Yorker, who also suggests in reply the following device:



A CONVENIENT CORK HOLDER.

If you don't know where to put the cork stick a pin in the lower end and bend it into a hook (see the figure), then hang the cork on the bottle. Bend the hook so as not to interfere with using ink and you have it always handy.

Dainty Desserts of Apples.

Now that winter is well under way, our supply of fresh domestic fruits is exhausted except the homely but always welcome apple, but this is a tower of strength to the ingenious cook, for it can be served in numberless attractive and palatable forms. Here are one or two:

Apple Cream.—Peel and core six large apples, boil them in a little water, with two ounces of raisins and the grated rind of a lemon, till quite soft; when cold add a glass of sherry. Lay the mixture in a pie dish, beat up the whites of three eggs with a little sugar to a stiff froth, spread it over the apples, and bake in a slow oven.

Apple Custard.—Lay some stewed apples in a deep pie dish; if not already sweetened, strew some sugar over them. Make a custard with four eggs, one pint of milk, and flavoring to taste, and, of course, a little sugar; pour it over the apples, strew some powdered cinnamon or nutmeg on the top, and bake it. An excellent dish for children.

Apple Meringue.—Put a teacupful of rice in a saucepan with one pint of sweetened milk, and let it simmer till quite tender, turn it into a basin, mix with it the beaten yolks of two eggs, return it to the saucepan, and boil it up again once or twice; then pile it high in a glass dish, when cool spread it all over with stewed apples. Whip the whites of the two eggs to a stiff froth, mix with them a small quantity of sugar, and lay this icing over the apples.

Escalloped Sweet Potatoes.

An uncommon and good way to cook sweet potatoes is to escallop them. Parboil the potatoes and slice them lengthwise. Lay in a baking dish with a little sugar, nutmeg and small pieces of butter between each layer and sugar and nutmeg on the top layer. Pour a cup of milk over all and bake till a light brown crust forms.

CASEY'S TABLE D'HOTE.

Oh, them days on Red Hoss mountain when the skies wuz fair 'nd blue,
When the money flowed like likker 'nd the folks wuz brave 'nd true!
When the nights wuz crisp and balmy, 'nd the camp wuz all astir
With the joints all throwed wide open 'nd no sheriff to demur!
Oh, them times on Red Hoss mountain in the Rockies fur away—
There's no sich place nor times like them as I kin find today!
What though the camp hez busted? I seem to see it still,
A-lying, like it loved it, on that big 'nd warty hill;
And I feel a sort of yearnin' 'nd a chokin' in my throat
When I think of Red Hoss mountain 'nd of Casey's tabble dote!

This Casey wuz an Irishman—you'd know it by his name
And by the facial features appertainin' to the same;
He'd lived in many places 'nd had done a thousand things,
From the noble art of actin' to the work of dealin' kings;
But, somehow, hadn't caught on—so, driftin' with the rest,
He drifted for a fortune to the undeveloped west,
And he come to Red Hoss mountain when the little camp wuz new,
When the money flowed like likker 'nd the folks wuz brave 'nd true;
And, havin' been a stewart on a Mississippi boat,
He opened up a caffy 'nd he run a tabble dote!

The bar wuz long 'nd rangey, with a mirror on the shelf—
'Nd a pistol, so that Casey, when required, could help himself;
Down underneath there wuz a row of bottled beer 'nd wine,
'Nd a kag of Burbon whisky of the run of '59;
Upon the walls wuz pictures of hosses 'nd of girls—
Not much on dress, perhaps, but strong on records 'nd on curls!
The which had been identified with Casey in the past—
The hosses 'nd the girls, I mean—and both wuz mighty fast!
But all these fine attractions wuz of precious little note
By the side of what was offered at Casey's tabble dote!

A tabble dote is different from orderin' aller cart:
In one case you git all there is—in t'other, only part!
And Casey's tabble dote began in French—as all begin—
And Casey's ended with the same, which is to say with "vin;"
But in between wuz every kind of reptile, bird 'nd beast,
The same like you can git in high toned restauraws down east;
'Nd windin' up wuz cake or pie, with coffee demy tass,
Or, sometimes, floatin' Ireland in a soothin' kind of sass
That left a sort of pleasant ticklin' in a feller's throat,
'Nd made him hanker after more of Casey's tabble dote.

The very recollection of them puddin's 'nd them pies
Brings a yearnin' to my buzzum 'nd the water to my eyes;
'Nd seems like cookin' nowadays ain't what it used to be
In camp on Red Hoss mountain in that year of '59;
But maybe it is better, and maybe I'm to blame—
I'd like to be a-livin' in the mountains jest the same—
I'd like to live that life again when skies wuz fair 'nd blue,
When things wuz run wide open 'nd men wuz brave 'nd true;
When brawny arms the flinty ribs of Red Hoss mountain smote
For wherewithal to pay the price of Casey's tabble dote!

Reading Character.

Brinks—Yes, sir, it is always easy to read character. Now, stop and notice the sneaking, cat like way in which that man walks, as if he feared to make a noise. Also his furtive glances. He looks no one in the eye. He appears to fear that every person he meets is a detective. He evidently regards himself as close to the outer grasp of the law, and he knows not what moment the blow may strike. That man is evidently a counterfeiter, thief or forger.

Jinks—Oh, no, you're away off. He's the husband of Mrs. Dash, the woman who thrashed a street car conductor the other day because he carried her a square too far.—Philadelphia Record.

The Horse and the Hill.

A Horse which had to draw a load to Market almost daily complained bitterly of a steep Hill on his route, saying:

"You are neither Useful nor Ornamental. You are simply an Obstruction to those who pass over this Highway. But for you my Labors would be much lighter."

The Driver overheard the complaint and at once replied:

"Cease your Lament. But for this Hill on our route I should add 500 extra Pounds to your load."

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often flounder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is summered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

THE rich and celebrated Israelite, Baron Hirsch, who has given $20,000,000 altogether for educational purposes in Russia and Austria, has produced a sensation in Paris by asserting in an interview that his purpose is to help settle the Jewish question, which he believes can only be done by the amalgamation of Jews and Christians and the subversion of exclusive theology. He declares himself the enemy of fanaticism and bigotry, and the funds he has donated are for the purpose of educating Jewish and Christian children together in the same schools. He says "I feel convinced that the doctrine of assimilation is the solution of the Semitic question."

OTHER Democrats, like the late Gen. Hancock, are evidently of the opinion that "the tariff is a local issue," Senator Voorhees, the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash, has been explaining whose tariff he wants reformed. It isn't the tariff around Terre Haute, New Albany and other Indiana manufacturing cities, but the one over in the other States. And, queer to narrate, Voorhees is not the only Democrat who wants the other fellow's tariff reformed. This is rather a selfish world.

MR. CLEVELAND lost much of his famous "back bone" when he withdrew his nomination of Leon Bailey for United States Attorney at Indianapolis. If Mr. Bailey was worthy of the appointment, of which we presume Mr. Cleveland assured himself before appointing him, nothing but the refusal of the Senate to confirm him should have led him to withdraw the nomination.

IT is reported that a Frenchman has invented a shell in which is inclosed a powerful anæsthetic. It is intended to explode in the enemy's breastworks and put them all to sleep, when the wide awake host will march in and arrange things before waking up time. It is a great improvement over the old method.

THE subject of taxation and the revision of tax laws is receiving attention in many other localities as well as in Ohio. St. Louis is moving for a law exempting personal property from taxation and Minnesota is debating the repeal of all taxes on the products of labor.

IT is amusing to read the live line press dispatches coming from such States as Pennsylvania saying that the thirty votes of that State have been cast for Harrison; or from Texas saying that the total electoral vote of that State has been given to Cleveland and Thurman. It does not make very sensational reading.

An American Newspaper.

The New York MAIL AND EXPRESS, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence. It is one of the clean, fair, tolerant and yet strong journals of this country, which has won a wide constituency for itself, made up of the best people. It has high notions in journalism and lives up to them. In all questions of government it is always with the moral and progressive elements. In editorial and in literary matters it is an American authority. It has a place of its own among American papers for felicitous sketches of everyday life and matters of current interest. Its writers excel in descriptive writing and in true and graceful portraiture of the better things in the social side of life. A reader can hardly pick up a paper of the better class in the United States without finding an article quoted from the MAIL AND EXPRESS. In its editorial conduct it is pure and always of high tone. It is sturdily Republican, and a strong friend of American labor. Its influence is always for the better side, and temperance people know it as one of the strongest, most influential newspapers on the side of practical temperance reform. It is one of the very best news and home papers.

Sample copies are sent free, and we advise every one of our readers to send for one.

On Jan. 26th, 1889, Mr. G. W. Van Alstine, late commissioner southern California exhibit at Ohio Centennial, will run another one of his popular excursions to the Golden State. —It is pleasing to note the enterprise of some of our leading merchants. At this season of the year when business is usually very dull, they are making inducements for buying goods that are out of season and goods that are going out of season, by making enormous reductions in prices. Persons who appreciate the value of money should investigate these sales as it would probably save them dollars on their spring purchases.

—Rochester Review: Black face comedy and negro fun is still popular, as was shown by the splendid house drawn by the performance of the "Big 4" last night. The "show," from beginning to end, is good in every respect. The singing, the dancing, the music are pleasing to the eye and ear, and the funny sayings kept the audience in a roar. The specialists, notably Mr. Weber, female impersonator, and Mr. Welch, contortionists, were good. We hope to welcome again to our city this company of excellent exponents of minstrelsy.

—Fostoria Dispatch: C. C. Reed, secretary of the Marion Water Works Co., is in the city looking up the prospects for water works. He represents the well known firm of Howland & Ellis, of Boston, Mass., who stand at the head of water works contractors in this country, and who have just been granted the franchise at Marion. Mr. Reed is greatly pleased with our city, and is very desirous of securing the franchise. The city will make no mistake in granting the franchise to such a reliable firm as Howland & Ellis are known to be.

The brother said that the young man was not right in the upper story and would most likely be sent to an asylum. The Mayor of Fostoria telegraphed here yesterday after they had left, asking that the young man be held until an officer could arrive from there with a warrant for him, as he had worked the same game in that place."

Dr. Frazier's Reputation Maintained Under a Forfeit of $500.

As per agreement the doctor has returned to Marion to fill the engagement made with the delegation of East [illegible]. Some were inclined to think that he would not return so soon, but the doctor's reputation of 12 years standing, with his many thousands of dollars to back up his claims, at this late date, to commence the practice of deception on his patients. Over three hundred of Marion's leading citizens can testify as to whether or not there is any real virtue in his treatment. Persons troubled with Corns, Bunions, Ingrowing Toenails, Chilblains, Excessive Perspiration of the feet, Warts, etc., will find it to their interest to call upon him as he guarantees a permanent cure in every case. Money is simply intended to afford comfort and ease, and those who have bad feet know how comfortable it is to suffer. After 8 o'clock Saturday evening, Jan. [illegible], the doctor's engagement will positively close for at least the next five months to come.

Calls made at residences by appointment. Hotel Marion.

The Piano Recital

[illegible] tickets for the piano recital to be given by Miss Neally Stevens, at Music Hall, Tuesday evening next, are being distributed among the subscribers, and are also on sale at Tristram & Young's. The price of admission to non-subscribers being one dollar for two tickets, with no extra charge for reserved seats.

Miss Stevens is now recognized as one of the foremost lady pianists of this country. She has received flattering encomiums from the most renowned pianists and composers of Europe, among whom may be mentioned Liszt, Von Bulow, Dr. Kullack, Scharwenka and Moszkowski. The versatility of her interpretative and executive ability may be judged by her repertoire, which embraces [illegible] classic and modern composition. She has achieved a most brilliant success wherever she has appeared, including such musical centers as Berlin, Germany, New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and other large cities.

From the American Art Journal—for sixty years past the foremost musical journal of New York City—in a criticism of her playing in that city after her return from Europe, said: "Miss Neally Stevens gave the cheval de bataille of every piano virtuoso, Liszt's E flat concerto. Miss Stevens throws off this dazzling piece of virtuosoship admirably, her touch being of the most elastic possible kind, the scales not merely sounding pearling, but dewey, and the runs seem fairly to sizzle, and the piano actually cools one on a hot day. Her bravura effects of the light and speedy variety were wonderful, and she plays with an ethereal fire which is to that of other pianists to whom we would give the title "fervent," what the "shimmering opal," which some one has called "a pearl with a soul in it," is to the flaming ruby."

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever," and no lover of the beautiful music should miss the opportunity afforded to attend this grand entertainment.

Miss Stevens will be assisted by a vocalist who never fails to carry the house by storm.

A most graceful and brilliant accompanist will complete the trio.

Let Music Hall be crowded.

The Suburbs of Melbourne.

One of the most pleasing features of Melbourne is the nearness of the numerous suburbs which surround the city proper. During the summer months intensely hot winds sweep over the city, spreading discomfort broadcast. To escape from the debilitating influence of these the Melbournites have only to spend a half hour in the train and they are at the seashore. Many of the suburban places are called by very English names, such as Kew, Brighton, Kensington, Northcote and Newport. St. Kilda is one of the more fashionable places of residence, and it is here that part of the play, "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," was based. It is only three miles from Melbourne and on the shores of Hobson bay. Numerous bathing establishments and hotels cater to the visitor's comfort.—New York Commercial Advertiser.

An Accommodating Judge.

Dan Langley, a Georgia moonshiner, was tried and convicted. At the trial he told the judge that he was to be married in a little over a month, and the judge therefore sentenced him to imprisonment for just one month. He was thus able to quit jail on a Monday and start for his home in Gordon county, where he was to be married on the following Wednesday. He was so thankful for the light sentence that he promised to send the judge a gallon of the best moonshine whisky to be got.—Chicago Times.

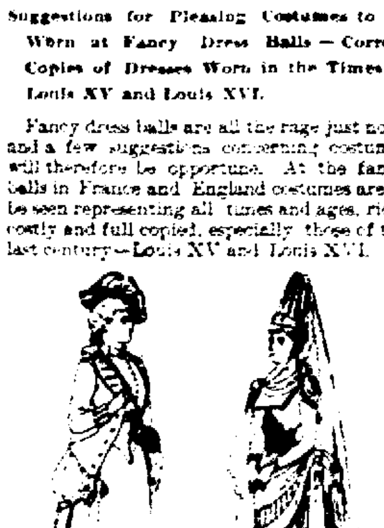
Suggestions for Pleasing Costumes to Be Worn at Fancy Dress Balls—Correct Copies of Dresses Worn in the Times of Louis XV and Louis XVI.

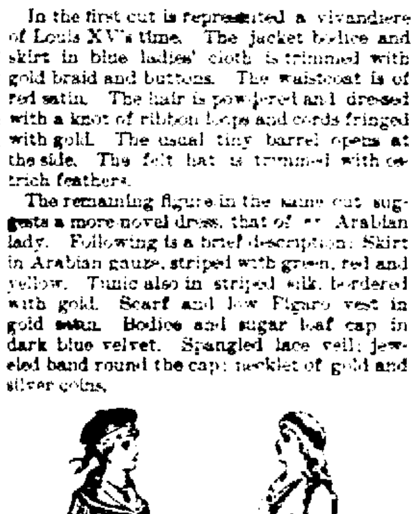
Fancy dress balls are all the rage just now, and a few suggestions concerning costumes will therefore be opportune. At the fancy balls in France and England costumes are to be seen representing all times and ages, rich, costly and full copied, especially those of the last century—Louis XV and Louis XVI.



NO. 1—VIVANDIERE LOUIS XV.—ARABIAN LADY.

In the first cut is represented a vivandiere of Louis XV's time. The jacket bodice and skirt in blue ladies' cloth is trimmed with gold braid and buttons. The waistcoat is of red satin. The hair is powdered and dressed with a knot of ribbon loops and cords fringed with gold. The usual tiny barrel opens at the side. The felt hat is trimmed with ostrich feathers.

The remaining figure in the same cut suggests a more novel dress, that of an Arabian lady. Following is a brief description: Skirt in Arabian gauze, striped with green, red and yellow. Tunic also in striped silk, bordered with gold. Scarf and low Figaro vest in gold satin. Bodice and sugar loaf cap in dark blue velvet. Spangled lace veil; jeweled band round the cap; necklet of gold and silver coins.



NO. 2—GRACE DARLING—DRUIDESS.

In the second cut is represented a costume for a favorite character at fancy dress balls—namely, Grace Darling. It includes a sailor's jacket and skirt in white and red tennis flannel, loose front, and tucked up drapery in white crepon cloth, turned down collar and bands round the short sleeves to correspond, trimmed with blue braid, black cashmere tie; cloth cap encircled with a ribbon on which is inscribed the name of a boat; rope and life buoy at the side.

The other figure in cut No. 2 shows a correct dress for a Druidess. The long, flowing dress may be of white China crape, nun's veiling or Indian silk, and is confined at the waist with a girdle. This white dress is draped over a gray satin skirt. An oak leaf wreath is on the head.

A successful costume is known as "Starlight Night," and consists of a long dress and a long veil of black tulle, studded with gold stars. The hair is worn flowing, and on the head rests a gold and diamond crescent. Another favorite is a historically correct costume, copied from portraits of "Good Queen Bess." Spanish gypsies are popular characters. The costume includes a short skirt in red satin, a bodice with a broad band of silk printed with gold cabalistic signs, scarf of black muslin striped with white satin and gold cordel silk. Low velvet bodice bordered with black lace, and relieved with a fringe of sequins and gold galloon. Spangles round the neck, head and on the arms. In the hair, tuft of gold and black ostrich tips.

Fur Lined Garments.

Fur linings are now limited almost entirely to the useful circulars with squirrel lock linings, and to the gay opera cloaks that are lined with the white crinkled fleece of the Chinese mandarin lamb. The circulars, says Harper's Bazar, are of Ottoman silk or of black camel's hair, and are improved by having an inner front fastened from top to bottom, with armholes in the outer cloak; they are trimmed down the fronts, over the armholes, and have a collar of fur, but are not trimmed at the foot, as that would add to their weight. Opera cloaks are long Russian coats of fine twilled wool in the new rosewood shades, with white lamb skin lining and collar, or else they are more loosely shaped, with square or flowing sleeves, and are made of pale gray velvet, with white mandarin collar and lining, or of plush lined and trimmed with chinchilla, or the cloak may be merely warmly wadded, and its only fur be the rich sable used for its shawl collar and border. Short opera cloaks in the mantle shapes are made of gay red or blue striped velvets, matelasse, or plush, and trimmed with the long furs, black fox, bear, silver fox, badger, etc. Cloth garments that are trimmed with fur are made up in nearly all the designs used for fur wraps; thus short jackets are of blue or black diagonal cloth, fitted by a tailor, and trimmed with collar, cuffs and vest, or with long front rows of plucked beaver fur; or else a black camel's hair cloth jacket has a wide roll or binding of black Persian lamb skin all around it, making it suitable for a mourning wrap, while the long Russian coats are made of the softest diagonal cloths—blue, green, or rosewood in color—trimmed with a shawl collar and lengthwise rows of black marten, or some other fur with long fleece.

Children's Millinery.

Children's millinery is even more picturesque than that of their elders. The flat empire hat is often supplemented by a ruche of ostrich feathers edging the inside of the brim, and capes of fur with a pointed hood of red cloth peeping from the center, though in quite a different style, are none the less becoming. Little faces always accord well with large hats, and they are often worn by the young folk. But felts with fur trimmings are fashionable, and with these bullrushes formed with beaver or otter are introduced in the trimming; these are new. Felts suit children, for they are light, and stand a good deal of knocking about. Many are made in the large shape with the brims of straw.

A SMALL BOY'S REVENGE.

He Creates a Family Row Over His Father's Pretty Typewriter.

A good story is told on a certain well known lawyer, who now has one of his daughters to manipulate his typewriter instead of the winsome blonde who was formerly a handsome piece of furniture in the office. The change came about in this way:

One day his 10-year-old son wandered into his office just as the legal light was examining a letter written by the hired amanuensis. In order to read the letter it was necessary for the lawyer to bend over the back of the young lady's chair. The youngster looked at his parent, took in the situation, and then said: "Pa, I want a quarter."

"I'm busy now, don't bother me, boy," said the father, and he continued to hang over the shapely shoulder of the fair typewriter and peruse the letter which she held in her hand.

"Pa," said the boy again, "I want a quarter. You'd better give it to me and I'll clear out."

"Don't worry me, I tell you," said the father. "Can't you see that I am busy?"

The youngster didn't say any more, but just hung around the office. He looked out of the window and counted the white horses as they went by, he emptied some sand into an inkstand, and then thickened the compound with mucilage, and did a lot of other mischievous tricks such as will only suggest themselves to a 10-year-old boy. But he kept a close watch on the governor and typewriter, and every now and then would shrug his shoulders, as much as to say: "I'll get even with you."

Finally the lawyer was ready to go home, and, taking his little boy by the hand, they walked to their modest appearing, but handsomely furnished residence. Very little was said on the way, and the father was evidently nettled at what he considered the misbehavior of his son. When the family sat down to dinner he narrated the circumstances to his wife, and she sternly told the young man that if he could not behave himself she would not let him go down to his father's office again.

The boy didn't seem to mind that much, and finally said, as he balanced his fork on his forefinger: "Perhaps I was somewhat rude and impatient, but, mamma, if you'd seen pa lean over that pretty typewriter and play with her bangs, and whisper in her ear, you'd have thought he'd been glad to give me a quarter to get me out of the way. I never knew how much pa was stuck on her before."

The youngster was sent away from the table in disgrace, and he subsequently received striking evidence of a parent's wrath, but there was also an agreement between the parents that resulted in the dismissal of the fair typewriter the following day.—Washington Star.

Lillian (with concealed disdain)—And did you really mean this lovely work bag for me?

Ethel (with virtuous complacency)—Yes, dear. I'm so glad if you like it. It was such a pleasure to make it when I thought it was to be for you.

Lillian (who has seen the same thing on Cashboy & Cheaply's fifty-cent bargain counter)—Oh, you dear darling, it was too good of you to take so much trouble just for me. But isn't it funny, our coachman gave the cook one just like it!—Time.

In Acadian Days.

"Evangeline," said old Basil, as he sat in the gloaming, without knowing what it was, "Evangeline, child of my heart, why do you call your heifer Oleomargarine?" "Because, papa," said the girl, who could not tell a lie, "because she is no butter." For an instant Basil sat as one in a trance, and then he leaped from his chair like the roe when he hears in the woodland the voice of the hunters, but Evangeline was gone.—Burdette in Brooklyn Eagle.

Charlie Was Economical.

Maud to Edith (whose engagement to Charlie Flashby is just announced)—So Charlie doesn't send you a box of bonbons every day, as he used to me?

Edith—No, indeed; Charlie would never bribe any one's love with candy.

Maud—Oh, of course not. He used to tell me there was no use wasting money on a girl when you were sure of her anyhow.—Buffalo Courier.

Just a Fit.

Miss Spinster (to shoe dealer)—I see that you have marked down some of your shoes.

Shoe Dealer—Yes, that line of ladies' shoes is marked down. We have marked 'em all down two sizes. Now there's a tidy little gaiter, 1½, I think will just fit you.

Miss Spinster blushes and buys the shoes.—Harper's Bazar.

Chronic, NERVOUS, SKIN AND BLOOD Diseases
Successfully Treated upon the Latest Scientific Principles.

DR. ALBERT Has attained the most wonderful success in the treatment of the cases to which he devotes his special attention, and through years of patient labor and research, he has discovered the most infallible method of curing general weakness, involuntary discharges, impotency, nervousness, confusion of ideas, palpitation of the heart, timidity, diseases of throat, nose and skin, affections of the liver, stomach and bowels—those terrible disorders arising from solitary habits of youth—and secret practices, making life a miserable existence and rendering marriage impossible.

Nervous Debility. Those suffering from Nervous Debility, the symptoms of which are a dull, distressed mind which unfits them for performing their business and social duties; make happy marriages impossible, distress the action of the heart, causing flushes of heat, depression of spirits, evil forebodings, cowardice, fear, dreams, short breathings, melancholy, tire easily of company and have a preference to be alone; feeling as tired in the morning as when retiring; lost manhood; white bone deposits in the urine, nervousness, trembling, confusion of thoughts, watery and weak eyes, dyspepsia, constipation, paleness, pain and weakness in the limbs, etc., should consult DR. ALBERT immediately and be restored to health.

Organal Weakness. Immediately cured and full vigor restored. This distressing affliction which renders life a burden and and marriage impossible—is the penalty paid by the victim of improper indulgence. The most chaste must acknowledge that the passions are the great magnet by which the whole world is attracted. Destroy them and what have we? Man is no longer interested in the opposite sex; the interchange of that blissful repose which attracts and interests the whole world, exists no longer; man ceases to be what God made him; the world is no longer interesting to him, and remorse and disappointment are his constant companions. Consult DR. ALBERT at once and you will find the sympathy and relief that you positively require.

Marriage. Married persons or young men contemplating marriage, aware of physical weakness, loss of procreative powers, impotency, or any other disqualifications speedily relieved. He who places himself under the care of DR. ALBERT, may confide in his honor as a gentleman, and confidently rely on his skill as a physician. DR. ALBERT has had many years' experience in hospitals and private practice and is a graduate of the most eminent Medical Colleges of the United States.

Young Men who have become victims of solitary vice,—that dreadful and destructive habit, which annually sweeps to an untimely grave, thousands of young men of exalted talent and brilliant intellect, may call with full confidence.

DR. ALBERT addresses all those who have injured themselves by improper indulgence and solitary habits which ruin both mind and body, unfitting them for business, study, society or marriage.

TESTIMONIALS WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE.

My daughter Maud has used Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters, which you so strongly recommended her to try for inflammatory rheumatism. Her limbs were badly swollen, and the poor girl was in terrible agony. In the midst of the pain we wound the Plasters about her limbs, and, as a result the swelling was reduced and she became quiet and rested. The syrup corrected her indigestion, cleansed the rheumatic poison from her blood, and she is now able to be around the house. Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters are remedies of great merit. REV. J. ROBERTS,
Pastor First M. E. Church, Fremont, Mich.

ALBION, Mich., Dec. 20, 1887.—While employed as agent of the Michigan Central Railroad Company at Augusta, Mich., about seven years ago, my kidneys became diseased, and I have been a great sufferer ever since. Have consulted the leading physicians of this city and Ann Arbor, and all pronounced my case Bright's disease. Suffering under a very severe attack in October last, began taking Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup, and am today a well man. It affords me pleasure to render suffering humanity any good that I can, and in speaking of the remedy, allow me to say that I think it the greatest medicine in the world. E. LANZILERE, Agent M. C. A SURE CURE FOR RHEUMATISM.

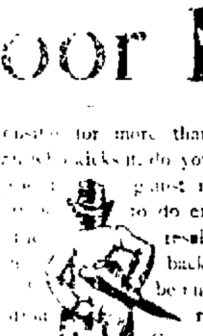
My Poor Back!



That "poor back" is held responsible for more than its share of the sufferings of mankind. If your dog gets in the way and you kick it, do you blame the dog? On the same principle the kidneys are blamed for [illegible] nervousness, impure blood, and resulting constipation. [illegible] to do extraordinary work in ridding the system of the poisonous [illegible] result of effete matter retained in the blood. Then the sufferer [illegible] back aches; the kidneys are diseased. "Not yet," but they [illegible] be unless the nerves are strengthened, the blood purified, and the constipation removed. These are the causes of kidney troubles, and Paine's [illegible] Compound removes them quickly. With its tonic, purifying and [illegible] effect, it also strengthens the weak kidneys, making it [illegible] curing all diseases of the nerves and kidneys. SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

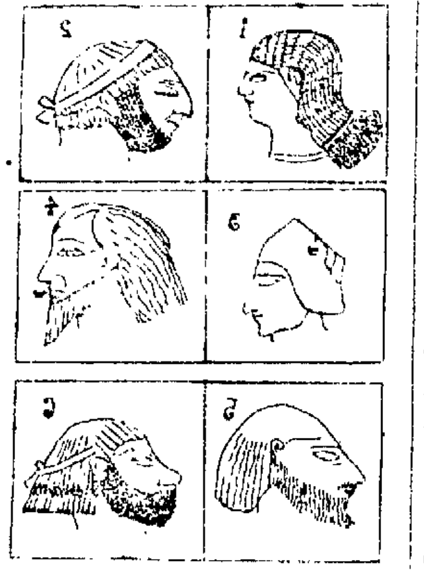
VARIOUS TOPICS THAT ARE BEING TALKED ABOUT.

Results from the Study of Babylonian Monuments Which Open Entirely New Ideas of the Early History of the Ancient World.

In a recent number of The Journal of the Anthropological institute, Mr G. Bertin publishes an interesting study of the types of man found on Babylonian monuments. One of the most remarkable results of his researches is the proof that the Armenian race of these early times exhibits the same characteristics to be noticed in the modern Armenians (fig. 3). This is the more remarkable from the fact that at this period the language spoken in Armenia, and illustrated by the inscriptions of Van, is totally different from Armenian, and linguistically connected with Akkadian and Medic. Evidently the Armenian population has, in course of time, acquired a new language, while its physical characteristics survive. Dr. von Luschan has shown that the Turks and Greeks of Asia Minor are of the same Armenian type, and thus the great antiquity of the native population of this region is proved.

A few figures from the plate accompanying Mr. Bertin's paper, and recently reproduced in Science, are shown in the annexed cut. It will be noted that the faces are represented in profile, with eyes in full face. Figs. 2, 4, 5 and 6 are of peculiar interest. The persons represented resemble the types of figures on Assyrian monuments, showing people of inferior condition. Fig. 2 is taken from an Assyrian monument. The head is small and round, the forehead low and slanting, the cheek bones high, the lips thin and the chin retreating. In many of these figures a marked prognathism may be observed. The nose is often large, and does not appear to have ever been flat and wide, as among the Tartars; hair and beard are frizzy, the stature short. In some parts of Babylonia this type seems to have formed the great mass of the population. According to Mr. B[illegible] theory, this people was the ground race of western Asia, and he goes so far as to identify it with the European prehistoric races, which are by many authors believed to be of [illegible] origin. He adds: "An important point to notice is that this race is everywhere found in an inferior social position, and it was equally so in the remotest antiquity. Nowhere did it rise to the rank of a dominant or a ruling race, but everywhere it accepted the yoke of the conquering tribe, the [illegible] the race of the land, and [illegible] with a passive [illegible]. This explains why this race has no language of its own, for it accepts willingly that of its masters." The author believes that the people was conquered by Akkadians and by Semites, and that the mixture of these races, with the addition of some Aryan blood, resulted in a population showing the various types found on the monuments.



TYPES ON BABYLONIAN MONUMENTS.

The study of the new Asiatic and Egyptian monuments from an anthropological and philological point of view has recently yielded most interesting results, and opened entirely new views of the early history of the ancient world. The intercourse between the various peoples, and their mutual influence upon each other, were so important that a comprehensive and comparative study of all these numerous peoples is necessary to reach satisfactory results. The theories of Mr. Bertin are suggestive, and well worthy careful consideration.

A New Submarine Boat.

Recent experiments with a submarine boat, Le Gymnote, made at Toulon, have been very successful. The boat moves horizontally as well as vertically, and is easily kept at any depth that is desired. It can be run at a speed of from nine to ten knots. The light is good and its operation easy. Its crew is ordinarily two, but during the experiments five persons were on board. The Revue Scientifique says that the new boat, an invention of Mr. Krebs, is a complete success, and will become of the greatest importance in marine warfare.

Caricature Photographs.

It is an easy matter for the photographic amateur to produce distorted portraits, similar to those represented in the engraving, with an ordinary camera. The method is described by La Nature as follows:

A full length picture is taken in the usual way, against a perfectly plain background, and without any accessories. From this negative a positive on glass is made by placing it in a printing frame against a sensitive glass plate, and exposing to the light of a lamp or candle for a few seconds. The positive transparency is developed and finished, and placed before the camera so that the light passes through it, but inclined at an angle to the camera, either lengthwise or sidewise according as the image is to be shortened or lengthened, and a second negative taken which will give the distorted figures shown in the engraving. To obtain the best results [illegible] used in taking the distorted picture must be of very short focus and as small a diaphragm used as is possible. From the second negative thus produced any number of positives can be printed.

AMUSING RESULTS OF PHOTOGRAPHY.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE

The Home Spun Linen Sheets of Our Grandmothers.

Fancy workers who happen to own old linen home spun sheets, such as are put away in forgotten trunks in many an old garret, may think themselves fortunate, says The Home Maker, for few modern materials are better subjects for needle work. If a sheet of this kind is in good order, it can be made into a beautiful quilt by making it very much smaller, as an ornamental bed cover is not designed to tuck in or hang very far over. The edge on each side may be fringed out and tied, or the edges may be hemmed and a slightly gathered frill of torchon lace added. Far enough from the edge to come within the square defined by the mattress a broad pattern in large design is drawn and worked in outline stitch with heavy rope silk in one or at most two shades. In the middle of the quilt, outline with the same color a large shield. Within this shield work a name or initials and darn all the plain part of the shield with a contrasting shade of silk.

If a sheet is too far demoralized to use in this way, it may be torn into strips and each strip decorated with a running pattern in outline stitch. These strips are hemmed and joined to alternate stripes of antique or torchon lace inserting, or the inserting may be knitted or crochetted, if time is not a paramount object.

For bureau covers, toilet mats, chair scarfs and cushions, this old linen is admirable. At some of the exchanges for woman's work, highly decorated curtains are shown of the same material, which hangs in beautiful folds.

Softening Water for the Laundry.

An authority on softening water, making soap and kindred matters says: For all washing and cleansing operations it is indispensable, if good and economical results are to be obtained, first to soften the water before using soap of any kind. Softening water simply consists in removing the soluble lime salts with which all water (except pure rainwater) is more or less impregnated. If this is not done the soluble lime forms an insoluble lime soap from the decomposition of the soap used for washing. This substance is a greasy, sticky, oily compound, perfectly insoluble and more difficult to wash away afterwards by any treatment. It is this that causes the yellow grayish deposit on the edges of collars and cuffs washed simply with hard water and soap, and the sticky, greasy deposit on wool when treated in a similar manner and also on the sides and edges of all washing machines.

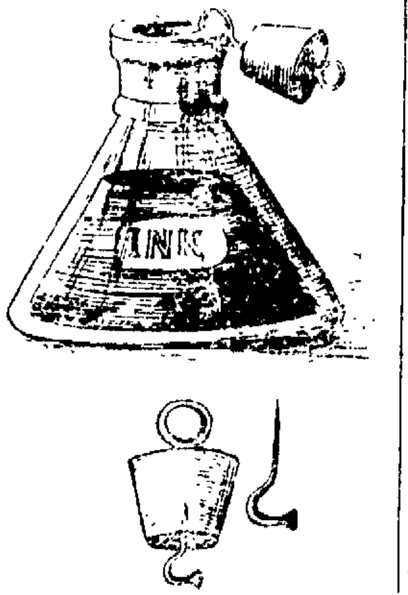
It is a most uneconomical proceeding to wash anything in water and soap alone without previously softening the water. Not a particle of soap can become available for washing purposes until all the added lime in the water has combined with the amount of soap it requires to form the insoluble lime soap. As compared with the pure 98 per cent. powdered caustic soda, such as the "Greenbank" brand, it requires twelve pounds of the very finest pure soap, or twenty to thirty pounds of ordinary soap, such as is usually sold to manufacturers, to do the same work that can be done with one pound of this soda.

Beef Drippings for Cooking Purposes.

Good beef dripping is better than lard for some kinds of pastry and for frying purposes, though for the latter use it burns sooner than lard. Clarify it by pouring boiling water on it as it is taken from the dripping pan, letting it stand till cold and firm, then taking off the cake of fat and scraping off the impurities from the bottom, the rest will be clean and sweet. Bacon fat can also be used in the place of lard, but mutton drippings will not answer for frying purposes, and many cooks will not use them even for suet on account of the flavor they impart.

An Ingenious Device.

"What do you do with the cork when you take it out of a full bottle of ink?" asks a correspondent of Rural New Yorker, who also suggests in reply the following device:



A CONVENIENT CORK HOLDER.

If you don't know where to put the cork stick a pin in the lower end and bend it into a hook (see the figure), then hang the cork on the bottle. Bend the hook so as not to interfere with using ink and you have it always handy.

Dainty Desserts of Apples.

Now that winter is well under way, our supply of fresh domestic fruit is exhausted except the homely but always welcome apple, but this is a tower of strength to the ingenious cook, for it can be served in numberless attractive and palatable forms. Here are one or two:

Apple Cream.—Peel and core six large apples, boil them in a little water, with two ounces of raisins and the grated rind of a lemon, till quite soft, when cold add a glass of sherry. Lay the mixture in a pie dish, beat up the whites of three eggs with a little sugar to a stiff froth, spread it over the apples, and bake in a slow oven.

Apple Custard.—Lay some stewed apples in a deep pie dish; if not already sweetened, strew some sugar over them. Make a custard with four eggs, one pint of milk, and flavoring to taste, and, of course, a little sugar; pour it over the apples, strew some powdered cinnamon or nutmeg on the top, and bake it. An excellent dish for children.

Apple Meringue.—Put a teacupful of rice in a saucepan with one pint of sweetened milk, and let it simmer till quite tender, turn it into a basin, mix with it the beaten yolks of two eggs, return it to the saucepan, and boil it up again once or twice; then pile it high in a glass dish. when cool spread it all over with stewed apples. Whip the whites of the two eggs to a stiff froth, mix with them a small quantity of sugar, and lay this icing over the apples.

Escalloped Sweet Potatoes.

An uncommon and good way to cook sweet potatoes is to escallop them. Parboil the potatoes and slice them lengthwise. Lay in a baking dish with a little sugar, nutmeg and small pieces of butter between each layer and sugar and nutmeg on the top layer. Pour a cup of milk over all and bake till a light brown crust forms.

CASEY'S TABLE D'HOTE.

Oh, them days on Red Hoss mountain when the skies wuz fair 'nd blue,
When the money flowed like likker 'nd the folks wuz brave 'nd true!
When the nights wuz crisp and balmy, 'nd the camp wuz all astir
With the joints all throwed wide open 'nd no sheriff to demur!
Oh, them times on Red Hoss mountain in the Rockies fur away
There's no sich place nor times like them as I kin find today!
What though the camp hez busted? I seem to see it still,
A-lying, like it loved it, on that big 'nd warty hill;
And I feel a sort of yearnin' 'nd a chokin' in my throat
When I think of Red Hoss mountain 'nd of Casey's tabble dote!

This Casey wuz an Irishman—you'd know it by his name
And by the facial features appertainin' to the same;
He'd lived in many places 'nd had done a thousand things,
From the noble art of actin' to the work of dealin' kings;
But, somehow, hadn't caught on—so, driftin' with the rest,
He drifted for a fortune to the undeveloped west,
And he come to Red Hoss mountain when the little camp wuz new,
When the money flowed like likker 'nd the folks wuz brave 'nd true;
And, havin' been a stewart on a Mississippi boat,
He opened up a caffy 'nd he run a tabble dote!

The bar wuz long 'nd rangey, with a mirror on the shelf—
'Nd a pistol, so that Casey, when required, could help himself;
Down underneath there wuz a row of bottled beer 'nd wine,
'Nd a kag of Burbon whisky of the run of '59;
Upon the walls wuz pictures of hosses 'nd of girls—
Not much on dress, perhaps, but strong on records 'nd on curls!
The which had been identified with Casey in the past—
The hosses 'nd the girls, I mean—and both wuz mighty fast!
But all these fine attractions wuz of precious little note
By the side of what was offered at Casey's tabble dote!

A tabble dote is different from orderin' aller cart;
In one case you git all there is—in t'other, only part!
And Casey's tabble dote began in French—as all begin—
And Casey's ended with the same, which is to say with "vin;"
But in between wuz every kind of reptile, bird 'nd beast,
The same like you can git in high toned restaurants down east;
'Nd windin' up wuz cake or pie, with coffee demy tass,
Or, sometimes, floatin' Ireland in a soothin' kind of sass
That left a sort of pleasant ticklin' in a feller's throat,
'Nd made him hanker after more of Casey's tabble dote!

The very recollection of them puddin's 'nd them pies
Brings a yearnin' to my buzzum 'nd the water to my eyes;
'Nd seems like cookin' nowadays ain't what it used to be
In camp on Red Hoss mountain in that year of '59;
But may be it is better, and may be I'm to blame—
I'd like to be a-livin' in the mountains jest the same—
I'd like to live that life again when skies wuz fair 'nd blue,
When things wuz run wide open 'nd men wuz brave 'nd true;
When brawny arms the [illegible]
[illegible]
For which [illegible] to pay the price of Casey's tabble dote!

—Eugene Field in Chicago [illegible].

Reading Character.

Binks—You see, it is not always easy to read character. Now, stop and notice the sneaking, cat-like way in which that man walks, as if he feared to make a noise. Look at his furtive glances. He looks anxious in the eye. He appears to fear that every person he sees may be a detective. He evidently regards himself as close to the outer edge of the law, and he knows not where the blow may strike. That man is undoubtedly a counterfeiter, forger or burglar.

Jinks—Oh, no; you're way off. He is Ben [illegible], the husband of Mrs. [illegible], the woman who thrashed a street car conductor the other day because he carried her one square too far.—Philadelphia Record.

The Horse and the Hill.

A Horse which had to draw a Load to Market almost daily complained bitterly of a steep Hill on his route, saying:

"You are neither Useful nor Ornamental. You are simply an Obstruction to those who pass over this Highway. But for you my labors would be much lighter."

The Driver overheard the complaint and at once replied:

"Cease your Laments. But for this Hill on our route I should add 500 extra Pounds to your load."

"Nope," replied Johnnie. "I guess I could stand it, Mr. Hankinson. Maw says I've got to wear short pants till after Irene's married."—Knickerbocker [illegible].

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simmered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

THE NEW YORK
MAIL AND EXPRESS

The Advocate of the Best Interests of the Home—The Enemy of the Saloon.
The Friend of American Labor.
The Favorite Newspaper of People of Refined Tastes Everywhere.

The New York MAIL AND EXPRESS, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence. It is in the broadest sense

A National Newspaper,

most carefully edited, and adapted to the wants and tastes of intelligent readers throughout the entire country—North, South, East and West. It is a thoroughly clean paper, free from the corrupting, sensational and demoralizing trash, miscalled news, which defiles the pages of too many city papers.

OUR POLITICS.

We believe the Republican party to be the true instrument of the POLITICAL PROGRESS of the American people; and holding that the honest enforcement of its principles is the best guarantee of the national welfare, we shall support them with all our might; but we shall always treat opposing parties with consideration and fair play.

AGAINST THE SALOON.

The MAIL AND EXPRESS is the recognized National organ of the great Anti-Saloon Republican movement. It believes that the liquor traffic as it exists to-day in the United States is the enemy of society, a fruitful source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy, a school of crime, and, with its avowed purpose of seeking to corruptly control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemnation of all good men.

THE rich and celebrated Israelite, Baron Hirsch, who has given $20,000,000 altogether for educational purposes in Russia and Austria, has produced a sensation in Paris by asserting in an interview that his purpose is to help settle the Jewish question, which he believes can only be done by the amalgamation of Jews and Christians and the subversion of exclusive theology. He declares himself the enemy of fanaticism and bigotry, and the funds he has donated are for the purpose of educating Jewish and Christian children together in the same schools. He says "I feel convinced that the doctrine of assimilation is the solution of the Semitic question."

OTHER Democrats, like the late Gen. Hancock, are evidently of the opinion that "the tariff is a local issue," Senator Voorhees, the Tall Sycamore of the Wabash, has been explaining whose tariff he wants reformed. It isn't the tariff around Terre Haute, New Albany and other Indiana manufacturing cities, but the one over in the other States. And, queer to narrate, Voorhees is not the only Democrat who wants the other fellow's tariff reformed. This is rather a selfish world.

MR. CLEVELAND lost much of his famous "back bone" when he withdrew his nomination of Leon Bailey for United States Attorney at Indianapolis. If Mr. Bailey was worthy of the appointment, of which we presume Mr. Cleveland assured himself before appointing him, nothing but the refusal of the Senate to confirm him should have led him to withdraw the nomination.

IT is reported that a Frenchman has invented a shell in which is inclosed a powerful anesthetic. It is intended to explode in the enemy's breastworks and put them all to sleep, when the wide awake host will march in and arrange things before waking up time. It is a great improvement over the old method.

THE subject of taxation and the revision of tax laws is receiving attention in many other localities as well as in Ohio. St. Louis is moving for a law exempting personal property from taxation and Minnesota is debating the repeal of all taxes on the products of labor.

IT is amusing to read the five line press dispatches coming from such States as Pennsylvania saying that the thirty votes of that State have been cast for Harrison, or from Texas saying that the total electoral vote of that State has been given to Cleveland and Thurman. It does not make very sensational reading.

An American Newspaper.

The New York MAIL AND EXPRESS, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence. It is one of the clean, fair, tolerant and yet strong journals of this country, which has won a wide constituency for itself, made up of the best people. It has high notions in journalism and lives up to them. In all questions of government it is always with the moral and progressive elements. In editorial and in literary matters it is an American authority. It has a place of its own among American papers for felicitous sketches of everyday life and matters of current interest. Its writers excel in descriptive writing and in true and graceful portraiture of the better things in the social side of life. A reader can hardly pick up a paper of the better class in the United States without finding an article quoted from the MAIL AND EXPRESS. In its editorial conduct it is pure and always of high tone. It is sturdily Republican, and a strong friend of American labor. Its influence is always for the better side, and temperance people know it as one of the strongest, most influential newspapers on the side of practical temperance reform. It is one of the very best news and home papers.

Sample copies are sent free, and we advise every one of our readers to send for one.

On Jan. 29th, 1889, Mr. G. W. Van Alstine, late commissioner southern California exhibit at Ohio Centennial, will run another one of his popular excursions to the Golden State. The excursion will leave Columbus on the morning of January 29th. At Chicago, passengers will take new tourist sleepers, recently put in service, and be carried through without change. Any one contemplating taking this trip should write at once to Mr. G. W. Van Alstine, No. 1 north High street, Columbus, O., for maps, pamplets and full information relative to the excursion.

—Bucyrus is circulating a petition for the establishing of a board of pension examiners at that place. We infer from this that some of the Republican doctors of Bucyrus wish to strike a soft job.

- Jno. Frash is making a genuine reduction in all classes of dry goods for a few days. Persons knowing his manner of doing business will be pleased to learn that this reduction of price includes every thing in stock.

- We have just placed on sale one and very large assortment of Embroideries which will be reduced with the other stock. See our window.

4811 JOHN FRASH.

-S. A. Court has now located in Toledo, and in addition to serving the Knights of Pythias as K. R. of R. and S., he will edit a new monthly society paper called the Pythian Journal. This is quite a new field for Mr. Court.

—Further particulars of the villainous attempt to murder ex Sheriff Hobensack at Mt. Victory, tend to show that two colored men did the deed and they are now jailed at Marysville. There are hopeful indications of Mr. Hobensack's ultimate recovery.

—It is pleasing to note the enterprise of some of our leading merchants. At this season of the year when business is usually very dull, they are making inducements for buying goods that are out of season and goods that are going out of season, by making enormous reductions in prices. Persons who appreciate the value of money should investigate these sales as it would probably save them dollars on their spring purchases.

- Rochester Review: Black faces comedy and negro fun is still popular, as was shown by the splendid house drawn by the performance of the "Big 4" last night. The "show," from beginning to end, is good in every respect. The singing, the dancing, the music are pleasing to the eye and ear, and the funny sayings kept the audience in a roar. The specialists, notably Mr. Weber, female impersonator, and Mr. Welch, contortionist, were good. We hope to welcome again to our city this company of excellent exponents of minstrelsy.

--Fostoria Dispatch: C. C. Reed, Secretary of the Marion Waterworks Co., is in the city looking up the prospects for water works. He represents the well known firm of Howland & Ellis, of Boston, Mass., who stand at the head of waterworks contractors in this country, and who have just been granted the franchise at Marion. Mr. Reed is greatly pleased with our city, and is very desirous of securing the franchise. The city will make no mistake in granting the franchise to such a reliable firm as Howland & Ellis are known to be.

The young man referred to in the following from the Lima Republican, beat some Marion parties by false pretenses also: "Young Straw, the young man arrested Saturday afternoon in this city, for obtaining money under false pretenses was taken home to Carey, O., by his brother, who arrived Sunday morning yesterday. The brother said that the young man was not right in the upper story, and would most likely be sent to an asylum. The Mayor of Fostoria telegraphed here yesterday after they had left, asking that the young man be held until an officer could arrive from there with a warrant for him, as he had worked the same game at that place."

Dr. Crazier's Reputation Maintained Under a Forfeit of $500

As per agreement, the doctor has returned to Marion to fill the engagement made with the delegation on last Friday evening. Some were inclined to think that he would not return so soon, but the doctor's reputation of 12 years standing, which is worth thousands of dollars to him, prevents him at this late date, to commence the practice of deception on his patients. Over three hundred of Marion's leading citizens can testify as to whether or not there is any real virtue in his treatment. Persons troubled with Corns, Bunions, Ingrowing Toenails, Chilblains, Excessive Perspiration of the feet, Warts, etc., will find it to their interest to call upon him as he guarantees a permanent cure in every case. Money is simply intended to afford us comfort and ease, and those who have bad feet know how comfortable it is to suffer. After 8 o'clock Saturday evening, Jan. 19th, the doctor's engagement will positively close for at least the next five months to come.

Calls made at residences by appointment. Hotel Marion.

Circuit Court Decisions.

Circuit court adjourned at 3 o'clock this afternoon, after a very short session in which the following disposition of cases was made:

Waldo Gas and Oil Co. vs. Deckert et al on error, judgment of Common Pleas court reversed and cause remanded for new trial.

The cases of the N. Y. L. E. and W. R'y Co. vs. the County Commissioners and the like case of the W. U. Telegraph Co. on error, were dismissed. Judge Seney dissented to this opinion.

George Roberts vs. John F. Goodas, on error, dismissed at costs of p[illegible] in error.

The Kerr will case is to be heard when the court convenes at Upper Sand[usky].

A Narrow Escape

Col. W. K. Nelson, of [illegible] came home one evening, feeling a peculiar tightness in the chest. Before retiring he tried to draw a long breath but found it almost impossible. He suffered for days from pneumonia, and the doctors gave him up. Dr. Acker's English Remedy for Consumption cured him, and he is well today.

The Piano Recital

[illegible] for the piano recital, to be given by Miss Neally Stevens at Music Hall Tuesday evening next, are being distributed among the subscribers, and are also on sale at Tristram & Young's. The price of admission, to subscribers being one dollar for two tickets, with no extra charge for reserved seats.

Miss Stevens is now recognized as one of the foremost lady pianists of this country. She has received flattering encomiums from the most renowned pianists and composers of Europe, among whom may be mentioned Liszt, Von Bulow, Dr. Kullack, Scharwenka and Moszkowski. The versatility of her interpretive and executive ability may be judged by her repertoire, which embraces all schools of both classic and modern composition. She has achieved a most brilliant success wherever she has appeared, including such musical centers as Berlin (Germany), New York, Chicago, San Francisco, and other large cities.

From the American Art Journal—for sixty years past the foremost musical journal of New York City—in a criticism of her playing in that city after her return from Europe, said: "Miss Neally Stevens gave the cheval de bataille of every piano virtuoso, Liszt's E flat concerto. Miss Stevens throws off this dazzling piece of virtuosoship admirably, her touch being of the most elastic possible kind, the scales not merely sounding pealing, but dewey, and the runs seem fairy to subtle, and the piano actually cools one on a hot day. Her bravura effects of the light and speedy variety were wonderful, and she plays with an ethereal fire which is to that of other pianists to whom we would give the title "fervent," what the "shimmering opal," which some one has called "a pearl with a soul in it," is to the flaming ruby.'

"A thing of beauty is a joy forever,' and no lover of the beautiful music should miss the opportunity afforded to attend this grand entertainment.

Miss Stevens will be assisted by a vocalist who never fails to carry the house by storm.

A most graceful and brilliant accompanist will complete the trio.

Let Music Hall be crowded.

The Suburbs of Melbourne.

One of the most pleasing features of Melbourne is the nearness of the numerous suburbs which surround the city proper. During the summer months intensely hot winds sweep over the city, spreading discomfort broadcast. To escape from the debilitating influence of these the Melbournites have only to spend a half hour in the train and they are at the seashore. Many of the suburban places are called by very English names, such as Kew, Brighton, Kensington, Northcote and Newport. St. Kilda is one of the more fashionable places of residence, and it is here that part of the play, "The Mystery of a Hansom Cab," was based. It is only three miles from Melbourne and on the shores of Hobson bay. Numerous bathing establishments and hotels cater to the visitor's comfort. —New York Commercial Advertiser.

An Accommodating Judge.

Dan Langley, a Georgia moonshiner, was tried and convicted. At the trial he told the judge that he was to be married in a little over a month, and the judge therefore sentenced him to imprisonment for just one month. He was thus able to quit jail on a Monday and start for his home in Gordon county, where he was to be married on the following Wednesday. He was so thankful for the light sentence that he promised to send the judge a gallon of the best moonshine whisky to be got.—Chicago Times.

Arrested for Murder.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Jan. 16.—Jerry Fay, for the circus employe, who killed Borthwick by a blow of his fist in a quarrel about a reserved seat last June, has been arrested in Philadelphia.

How Doctors Conquer Death.

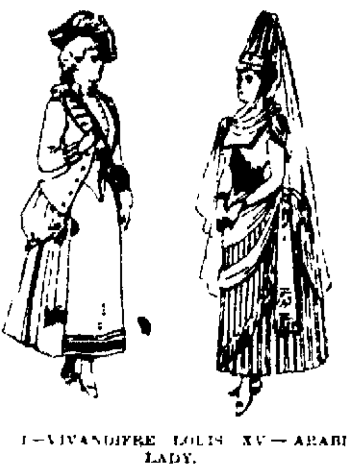
Suggestions for Pleasing Costumes to Be Worn at Fancy Dress Balls—Correct Copies of Dresses Worn in the Times of Louis XV and Louis XVI.

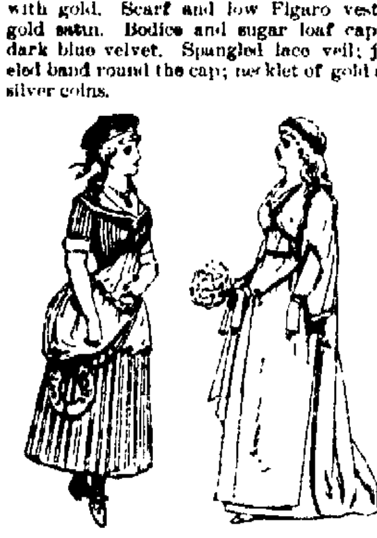
Fancy dress balls are all the rage just now, and a few suggestions concerning costumes will therefore be opportune. At the fancy balls in France and England costumes are to be seen representing all times and ages, rich, costly and full copied, especially those of the last century—Louis XV and Louis XVI.



NO. 1—VIVANDIERE LOUIS XV—ARABIAN LADY.

In the first cut is represented a vivandiere of Louis XV's time. The jacket bodice and skirt in blue ladies' cloth is trimmed with gold braid and buttons. The waistcoat is of red satin. The hair is powdered and dressed with a knot of ribbon loops and cords fringed with gold. The usual tiny barrel opens at the side. The felt hat is trimmed with ostrich feathers.

The remaining figure in the same cut suggests a more novel dress, that of an Arabian lady. Following is a brief description: Skirt in Arabian gauze, striped with green, red and yellow. Tunic also in striped silk, bordered with gold. Scarf and low Figaro vest in gold satin. Bodice and sugar loaf cap in dark blue velvet. Spangled lace veil; jeweled band round the cap; necklet of gold and silver coins.



NO. 2—GRACE DARLING—DRUIDESS.

In the second cut is represented a costume for a favorite character at fancy dress balls—namely, Grace Darling. It includes a sailor's jacket and skirt in white and red tennis flannel, loose front, and tucked up drapery in white crepon cloth, turned down collar and bands round the short sleeves to correspond, trimmed with blue braid, black cashmere tie; cloth cap encircled with a ribbon, on which is inscribed the name of a boat; rope and life buoy at the side.

The other figure in cut No. 2 shows a correct dress for a Druidess. The long, flowing dress may be of white China crape, nuns veiling or Indian silk, and is confined at the waist with a girdle. This white dress is draped over a gray satin skirt. An oak leaf wreath is on the head.

A successful costume is known as a "Starlight Night," and consists of a long dress and a long veil, both of black tulle, studded with gold stars. The hair is worn flowing, and on the head rests a gold and diamond crescent. Another favorite is a historically correct costume, copied from portraits of "Good Queen Bess." Spanish gypsies are popular characters. The costume includes a short skirt in red satin, adorned with a broad band of silk printed with gold cabalistic signs. Scarf of black moire silk, striped with white satin and gold corded silk. Low velvet bodice, bordered with black lace, and relieved with a fringe of sequins and gold galloon. Spangles round the neck, head and on the arms. In the hair, tuft of gold and black ostrich tips.

Fur Lined Garments.

Fur linings are now limited almost entirely to the useful circulars with squirrel lock linings, and to the gay opera cloaks that are lined with the white crinkled fleece of the Chinese mandarin lamb. The circulars, says Harper's Bazar are of Ottoman silk or of black camel's hair, and are improved by having an inner front fastened from top to bottom, with armholes in the outer cloak; they are trimmed down the fronts, over the armholes, and have a collar of fur, but are not trimmed at the foot, as that would add to their weight. Opera cloaks are long Russian coats of fine twilled wool in the new rosewood shades, with white lamb skin lining and collar, or else they are more loosely shaped, with square or flowing sleeves, and are made of pale gray velvet, with white mandarin collar and lining, or of plush lined and trimmed with chinchilla, or the cloak may be merely warmly wadded, and its only fur be the rich sable used for its shawl collar and border. Short opera cloaks in the mantle shapes are made of gay red or blue striped velvets, matelasse, or plush, and trimmed with the long furs, black fox, bear, silver fox, badger, etc. Cloth garments that are trimmed with fur are made up in nearly all the designs used for fur wraps, thus short jackets are of blue or black diagonal cloth, fitted by a tailor, and trimmed with collar, cuffs and vest, or with long front rows of plucked beaver fur; or else a black camel's hair cloth jacket has a wide roll or binding of black Persian lamb skin all around it, making it suitable for a mourning wrap, while the long Russian coats are made of the softest diagonal cloths—blue, green, or rosewood in color—trimmed with a shawl collar and lengthwise rows of black marten, or some other fur with long fleece.

Children's Millinery.

Children's millinery is even more picturesque than that of their elders. The flat empire hat is often supplemented by a ruche of ostrich feathers edging the inside of the brim, and caps of fur with a pointed hood of red cloth peeping from the center, though in quite a different style, are none the less becoming. Little faces always accord well with large hats, and they are often worn by the young folks. But felts with fur trimmings are fashionable, and with these bulrushes formed with beaver or otter are introduced in the front, these are new. Felts suit children, for they are light, and stand a good deal of knocking about. Many are made in the large shape with the brim left raw.

ABOUT SUICIDES.

November is generally believed to be the month of suicides.

A man will by preference hang himself and a woman drown herself.

August is the month in which the greatest number of suicides takes place in Paris.

In Austria the number of suicides is nearly double that of England, but both Italy and Russia are lower on the list.

The number of suicides in most European countries has been considerable during the last eight years, but in France it has been enormous.

In Prussia a very large number of persons seem to be tired of a world infested with pessimism and compulsory military service.

In [illegible] "the flowery month" of June is the favorite time, the three months of summer showing 2,485 suicides, as against 1,537 in winter.

Protestants are more apt to fly to suicide than Catholics, who, again, are less impatient of life than Jews, inclined as that race is to mental dislocation.

The most original, though unsuccessful, would be suicide on record is the young lady who knelt down, like a votary of Juggernaut, in front of an omnibus.

Drunkards and people who are tired of life and worn out with excesses take to hanging, those to whom family misfortunes have made life unendurable choose drowning.

Last year July was the suicidal month in Paris, and it is considered a noteworthy fact that the suicides have increased since the establishment of the fete on the 14th of that month.

At Plymouth a man named Jelly tied his feet and hands together, and then threw himself into the water, having previously announced his intention of committing suicide in that particular way.

A Parisian grisette filled her small bedroom with flowers, and when her mother went to call her in the morning she found her dead. This young creature understood vegetable physiology and chemistry.

Professor Morselli, who has made a special study of this subject, says it is not true that suicide is more frequent in damp, cloudy and dark weather, such as helps the development of melancholy passions.

As a national peculiarity it may be mentioned that the percentage of those who select slashing instruments as a means of death is so great in England that it may be said that the English people are the greatest "cut-throats" in Europe.

A SMALL BOY'S REVENGE.

He Creates a Family Row Over His Father's Pretty Typewriter.

A good story is told on a certain well known lawyer, who now has one of his daughters to manipulate his typewriter instead of the winsome blonde who was formerly a handsome piece of furniture in the office. The change came about in this way:

One day his 10-year-old son wandered into his office just as the legal light was examining a letter written by the hired amanuensis. In order to read the letter it was necessary for the lawyer to bend over the back of the young lady's chair. The youngster looked at his parent, took in the situation, and then said: "Pa, I want a quarter."

"I'm busy now, don't bother me, boy," said the father, and he continued to hang over the shapely shoulder of the fair typewriter and peruse the letter which she held in her hand.

"Pa," said the boy again, "I want a quarter. You'd better give it to me and I'll clear out."

"Don't worry me, I tell you," said the father. "Can't you see that I am busy?"

The youngster didn't say any more, but just hung around the office. He looked out of the window and counted the white horses as they went by; he emptied some sand into an inkstand, and then thickened the compound with mucilage, and did a lot of other mischievous tricks such as will only suggest themselves to a 10-year-old boy. But he kept a close watch on the governor and typewriter, and every now and then would shrug his shoulders as much as to say: "I'll get even with you."

Finally the lawyer was ready to go home, and, taking his little boy by the hand, they walked to their modest appearing, but handsomely furnished residence. Very little was said on the way, and the father was evidently nettled at what he considered the misbehavior of his son. When the family sat down to dinner he narrated the circumstances to his wife, and she sternly told the young man that if he could not behave himself she would not let him go down to his father's office again.

The boy didn't seem to mind that much, and finally said, as he balanced his fork on his forefinger. "Perhaps I was somewhat rude and impatient, but, mamma, if you'd seen pa lean over that pretty typewriter and play with her bangs, and whisper in her ear, you'd have thought he'd been glad to give me a quarter to get me out of the way. I never knew how much pa was stuck on her before."

The youngster was sent away from the table in disgrace, and he subsequently received striking evidence of a parent's wrath, but there was also an agreement between the parents that resulted in the dismissal of the fair typewriter the following day.—Washington Star.

TESTIMONIALS WORTHY OF CONFIDENCE.

My daughter Maud has used Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters, which you so strongly recommended her to try for inflammatory rheumatism. Her limbs were badly swollen, and the poor girl was in terrible agony. In the midst of the pain we wound the Plasters about her limbs, and, as a result the swelling was reduced and she became quiet and rested. The syrup corrected her indigestion, cleansed the rheumatic poison from her blood, and she is now able to be around the house. Hibbard's Rheumatic Syrup and Plasters are remedies of great merit.

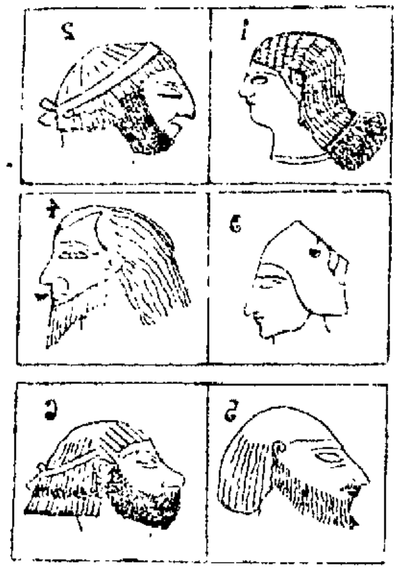
SCIENCE AND PROGRESS.

VARIOUS TOPICS THAT ARE BEING TALKED ABOUT.

Results from the Study of Babylonian Monuments Which Open Entirely New Ideas of the Early History of the Ancient World.

In a recent number of The Journal of the Anthropological institute, Mr. G. Bertin publishes an interesting study of the types of man found on Babylonian monuments. One of the most remarkable results of his researches is the proof that the Armenian race of these early times exhibits the same characteristics to be noticed in the modern Armenians (Fig. 3). This is the more remarkable from the fact that at this period the language spoken in Armenia, and illustrated by the inscriptions of Van, is totally different from Armenian, and linguistically connected with Akkadian and Medic. Evidently the Armenian population has, in course of time, acquired a new language, while its physical characteristics survive. Dr. von Luschan has shown that the Turks and Greeks of Asia Minor are of the same Armenian type, and thus the great antiquity of the native population of this region is proved.

A few figures from the plate accompanying Mr. Bertin's paper, and recently reproduced in Science, are shown in the annexed cut. It will be noted that the faces are represented in profile, with eyes in full face. Figs. 2, 4, 5 and 6 are of peculiar interest. The persons represented resemble the types of figures on Assyrian monuments, showing people of inferior condition. Fig. 2 is taken from an Assyrian monument. The head is small and round, the forehead low and slanting, the cheek bones high, the lips thin and the chin retreating. In many of these figures a marked prognathism may be observed. The nose is often large, and does not appear to have ever been flat and wide, as among the Tartars; hair and beard are frizzy; the stature short. In some parts of Babylonia this type seems to have formed the great mass of the population. According to Mr. Bertin's theory, this people was the aboriginal race of western Asia, and he goes so far as to identify it with the European prehistoric races, which are by many authors believed to be of Iberian origin. He adds: "An important point to notice is that this race is everywhere found in an inferior social position, and it was equally so in the remotest antiquity. Nowhere did it rise to the rank of a dominant or ruling race, but everywhere it accepted the yoke of the conquering tribe invading its land. It was the race of the land, and it accepted every new master with a passive obedience. This explains why this race has no language of its own, for it accepts willingly that of its masters." The author believes that this people was conquered by Akkadians and by Semites, and that the mixture of these races, with the addition of some Aryan blood, resulted in a population showing the various types found on the monuments.



TYPES ON BABYLONIAN MONUMENTS.

The study of Babylonian, Asiatic and Egyptian monuments from an anthropological and philological point of view has recently yielded most interesting results, and opened entirely new views of the early history of the ancient world. The intercourse between the various peoples, and their mutual influence upon each other, were so important that a comprehensive and comparative study of all these numerous peoples is necessary to reach satisfactory results. The theories of Mr. Bertin are suggestive, and well worth careful consideration.

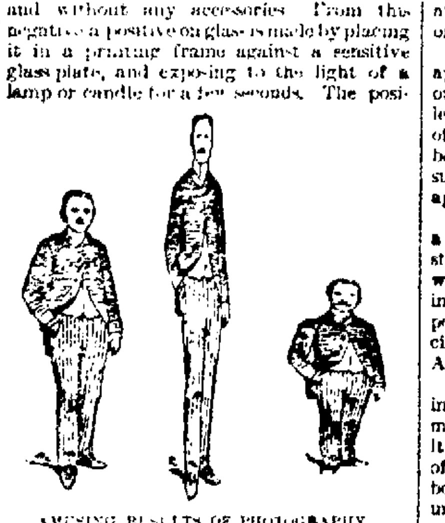
A New Submarine Boat.

Recent experiments with a submarine boat, Le Gymnote, made at Toulon, have been very successful. The boat moves horizontally as well as vertically, and is easily kept at any depth that is desired. It can be run at a speed of from nine to ten knots. The light is good and respiration easy. Its crew is ordinarily three, but during the experiments five persons were on board. The Revue Scientifique says that the new boat, an invention of Mr. Krebs, is a complete success, and will become of the greatest importance in marine warfare.

Caricature Photographs.

It is an easy matter for the photographic amateur to produce distorted portraits, similar to those represented in the engraving, with an ordinary camera. The method is described by La Nature as follows:

A full length picture is taken in the usual way, against a perfectly plain background, and without any accessories. From this negative a positive on glass is made by placing it in a printing frame against a sensitive glass plate, and exposing to the light of a lamp or candle for a few seconds. The positive transparency is developed and finished, and placed before the camera so that the light passes through it, but inclined at an angle to the camera, either lengthwise or sidewise, according as the image is to be shortened or lengthened, and a second negative taken which will give the distorted figures shown in the engraving. To obtain the best result it should be used in taking the distorted picture must be of very short focus and as small a diaphragm used as is possible. From the second negative thus produced any number of positives can be printed.



AMUSING RESULTS OF PHOTOGRAPHY.

ALL AROUND THE HOUSE

The Home Spun Linen Sheets of Our Grandmothers.

Fancy workers who happen to own old linen home spun sheets, such as are put away in forgotten trunks in many an old garret, may think themselves fortunate, says The Home Maker, for few modern materials are better subjects for needle work. If a sheet of this kind is in good order, it can be made into a beautiful quilt by making it very much smaller, as an ornamental bed cover is not designed to tuck in or hang very far over. The edge on each side may be fringed out and tied, or the edges may be hemmed and a slightly gathered frill of torchon lace added. Far enough from the edge to come within the square defined by the mattress a broad pattern in large design is drawn and worked in outline stitch with heavy rope silk in one or at most two shades. In the middle of the quilt, outline with the same color a large shield. Within this shield work a name or initials and darn all the plain part of the shield with a contrasting shade of silk.

If a sheet is too far demoralized to use in this way, it may be torn into strips and each strip decorated with a running pattern in outline stitch. These strips are hemmed and joined to alternate stripes of antique or torchon lace inserting, or the inserting may be knitted or crochetted, if time is not a paramount object.

For bureau covers, toilet mats, chair scarfs and cushions, this old linen is admirable. At some of the exchanges for woman's work, highly decorated curtains are shown of the same material, which hangs in beautiful folds.

Softening Water for the Laundry.

An authority on softening water, making soap and kindred matters says: For all washing and cleansing operations it is indispensable, if good and economical results are to be obtained, first to soften the water before using soap of any kind. Softening water simply consists in removing the soluble lime salts with which all water (except pure rainwater) is more or less impregnated. If this is not done the soluble lime forms an insoluble lime soap from the decomposition of the soap used for washing. This substance is a greasy, sticky, oily compound, perfectly insoluble and more difficult to wash away afterwards by any treatment. It is this that causes the yellow grayish deposit on the edges of collars and cuffs washed simply with hard water and soap, and the sticky, greasy deposit on wool when treated in a similar manner and also on the sides and edges of all washing machines.

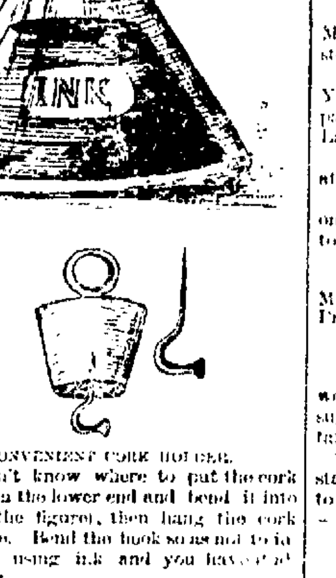
It is a most uneconomical proceeding to wash anything in water and soap alone without previously softening the water. Not a particle of soap can become available for washing purposes until all the added lime in the water has combined with the amount of soap it requires to form the insoluble lime soap. As compared with the pure 98 per cent. powdered caustic soda, such as the "Greenbank" brand, it requires twelve pounds of the very finest pure soap, or twenty to thirty pounds of ordinary soap, such as is usually sold to manufacturers, to do the same work that can be done with one pound of this soda.

Beef Drippings for Cooking Purposes.

Good beef dripping is better than lard for some kinds of pastry and for frying purposes, though for the latter use it burns sooner than lard. Clarify it by pouring boiling water on it as it is taken from the dripping pan, letting it stand till cold and firm, then taking out the cake of fat and scraping off the impurities from the bottom, the rest will be clean and sweet. Bacon fat can also be used in the place of lard, but mutton drippings will only answer for frying purposes, and many cooks will not use them even for that on account of the flavor they impart.

An Ingenious Device.

"What do you do with the cork when you take it out of a full bottle of ink?" asks a correspondent of Rural New Yorker, who also suggests in reply the following device:



A CONVENIENT CORK HOLDER.

If you don't know where to put the cork stick a pin in the lower end and bend it into a hook (see the figure), then hang the cork on the bottle. Bend the hook so as not to interfere with using ink and you have it always handy.

Dainty Desserts of Apples.

Now that winter is well under way, our supply of fresh domestic fruits is exhausted except the homely but always welcome apple, but this is a tower of strength to the ingenious cook, for it can be served in numberless attractive and palatable forms. Here are one or two:

Apple Cream.—Peel and core six large apples; boil them in a little water, with two ounces of raisins and the grated rind of a lemon, till quite soft, when cold add a glass of sherry. Lay the mixture in a pie dish, beat up the whites of three eggs with a little sugar to a stiff froth, spread it over the apples, and bake in a slow oven.

Apple Custard.—Lay some stewed apples in a deep pie dish; if not already sweetened, strew some sugar over them. Make a custard with four eggs, one pint of milk, and flavoring to taste, and, of course, a little sugar; pour it over the apples, strew some powdered cinnamon or nutmeg on the top, and bake it. An excellent dish for children.

Apple Meringue.—Put a teacupful of rice in a saucepan with one pint of sweetened milk, and let it simmer till quite tender, turn it into a basin, mix with it the beaten yolks of two eggs, return it to the saucepan, and boil it up again once or twice; then pile it high in a glass dish, when cool spread it all over with stewed apples. Whip the whites of the two eggs to a stiff froth, mix with them a small quantity of sugar, and lay this icing over the apples.

Escalloped Sweet Potatoes.

An uncommon and good way to cook sweet potatoes is to escallop them. Parboil the potatoes and slice them lengthwise. Lay in a baking dish with a little sugar, nutmeg and small pieces of butter between each layer and sugar and nutmeg on the top layer. Pour a cup of milk over all and bake till a light brown crust forms.

CASEY'S TABLE D'HOTE.

Oh, them days on Red Hoss mountain when the skies wuz fair 'nd blue,
When the money flowed like likker 'nd the folks wuz brave 'nd true!
When the nights wuz crisp and balmy, 'nd the camp wuz all astir
With the joints all throwed wide open 'nd no sheriff to demur!
Oh, them times on Red Hoss mountain in the Rockies fur away
There's no sich place nor times like them as I kin find today!
What though the camp hez busted? I seem to see it still,
A-lying, like it loved it, on that big 'nd warty hill;
And I feel a sort of yearnin' 'nd a chokin' in my throat
When I think of Red Hoss mountain 'nd of Casey's tabble dote!

This Casey wuz an Irishman—you'd know it by his name
And by the facial features appertainin' to the same;
He'd lived in many places 'nd had done a thousand things,
From the noble art of actin' to the work of dealin' kings;
But, somehow, hadn't caught on—so, driftin' with the rest,
He drifted for a fortune to the undeveloped west,
And he come to Red Hoss mountain when the little camp wuz new,
When the money flowed like likker 'nd the folks wuz brave 'nd true;
And, havin' been a stewart on a Mississippi boat,
He opened up a cafty 'nd he run a tabble dote!

The bar wuz long 'nd rangey, with a mirror on the shelf—
'Nd a pistol, so that Casey, when required, could help himself;
Down underneath there wuz a row of bottled beer 'nd wine,
'Nd a kag of Burbon whisky of the run of '59;
Upon the walls wuz pictures of hosses 'nd of girls—
Not much on dress, perhaps, but strong on records 'nd on curls!
The which had been identified with Casey in the past—
The hosses 'nd the girls, I mean—and both wuz mighty fast!
But all these fine attractions wuz of precious little note
By the side of what was offered at Casey's tabble dote!

A tabble dote is different from orderin' aller cart;
In one case you git all there is—in t'other, only part!
And Casey's tabble dote began in French—as all begin—
And Casey's ended with the same, which is to say with "vin;"
But in between wuz every kind of reptile, bird 'nd beast,
The same like you can git in high toned restaurants down east;
'Nd windin' up wuz cake or pie, with coffee demy tass,
Or, sometimes, floating Ireland in a soothin' kind of sass
That left a sort of pleasant ticklin' in a feller's throat,
'Nd made him hanker after more of Casey's tabble dote.

The very recollection of them puddins 'nd them pies
Brings a yearnin' to my buzzum 'nd the water to my eyes;
'Nd seems like cookin' nowadays ain't what it used to be
In camp on Red Hoss mountain in that year of '63;
But may be it is better, and may be I'm to blame—
I'd like to be a livin' in the mountains jest the same—
I'd like to live that life again when skies wuz fair 'nd blue,
When things wuz run wide open 'nd men wuz brave 'nd true;
When brave [illegible] the [illegible] of Red Hoss mountain's [illegible]
For which [illegible] to pay the price of Casey's tabble dote!"

—Eugene Field in Chicago News.

Reading Character.

Brooks—Yes, sir, it is always easy to read character. Now, stop and notice the sneaking, cat like way in which that man walks, as if he feared to make a noise. Watch his furtive glances. He looks no one in the eye. He appears to fear that every person he meets is a detective. He evidently regards himself as close to the strong grip of the law, and he knows not what moment the blow may strike. That man is undoubtedly a counterfeiter, forger or burglar.

Jinks—Oh, no, you're way off. He's Don [illegible] the husband of Mrs. [illegible], the woman who thrashed a street car conductor the other day because he charged her [illegible] too fat.—Philadelphia Record.

The Horse and the Hill.

A Horse which had to draw a load to Market almost daily complained bitterly of a steep Hill on his route, saying:

"You are neither Useful nor Ornamental. You are simply an Obstruction to those who pass over this Highway. But for you my Labors would be much lighter."

The Driver overheard the complaint and at once replied:

"Cease your laments. But for this Hill on our route I should add 500 extra Pounds to your load."

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simmered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course, unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad of anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

The Favorite Newspaper of People of Refined Tastes Everywhere.

The New York MAIL AND EXPRESS, the favorite American newspaper of many people of intelligent and cultivated tastes, has recently made some noteworthy improvements, materially increasing its general excellence. It is in the broadest sense

A National Newspaper,

most carefully edited, and adapted to the wants and tastes of intelligent readers throughout the entire country—North, South, East and West. It is a thoroughly clean paper, free from the corrupting, sensational and demoralizing trash, miscalled news, which defiles the pages of too many city papers.

OUR POLITICS.

We believe the Republican party to be the true instrument of the POLITICAL PROGRESS of the American people; and holding that the honest enforcement of its principles is the best guarantee of the national welfare, we shall support them with all our might; but we shall always treat opposing parties with consideration and fair play.

AGAINST THE SALOON.

The MAIL AND EXPRESS is the recognized National organ of the great Anti-Saloon Republican movement. It believes that the liquor traffic as it exists to-day in the United States is the enemy of society, a fruitful source of corruption in politics, the ally of anarchy, a school of crime, and, with its avowed purpose of seeking to corruptly control elections and legislation, is a menace to the public welfare and deserves the condemnation of all good men.
